Council to discuss FAR, street fair issues

By FRANK GEORGE

THE CARMEL City Council will again discuss the 40 percent floor area ratio (FAR) issue at its Dec. 4 meeting.

The council will first decide if the issue should go on the March 6, 1991 ballot at the meeting set for 4 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 4 at Carmel City Council Chambers, then they will conclude if they are comfortable with the language slated for the ballot.

Councilman Ken White rekindled the issue at the Nov. 8 meeting, saying he thinks the current ballot wording does not correspond with the council's original intentions. He said the original emphasis pointed toward asking residents to vote yes or no on a 40 percent floor area ratio (FAR).

The ballot currently asks voters to choose either a 40 or 45 percent FAR for residential homes. Both issues are before the council because City Atty. Don Freeman said since the ballot language question is before them, the councilmembers must also reconsider approval of the ballot itself.

Under city ordinance, the current standard for homes in the residential district is 40 percent. The popular vote would either retain or rescind guidelines in the General Plan, which puts the FAR at 45 percent.

In other action, Councilmember Bob Fischer will ask the council to appoint one councilmember to work with the Carmel Business Association (CBA) on their plans for a spring 1991 street fair. Councilmembers denied previous outlines for the fair at the Nov. 8 meeting.

"I think it would be fun," said Fischer, who along with Mayor Jean Grace voted in favor of the fair in the 3-2 decision. "I think it's time for Carmel to look within itself to see how fun a Carmel Fair would be. Especially if we can help our own artists and craftsman."

The CBA originally intended to close Ocean Avenue to traffic and set up booths where local artisans could sell their work. Councilmembers Barbara Brooks, Ken Wright and White objected to the closure of Ocean as well as the wine sales proposed for the event.

In other business, the council will receive a report from the Administration Commission on a work program for the study of the commercial district and the commercial use codes. The study is in reponse to a recent series of rezone and use appeals at the planning commission and council levels (Clint Eastwood was the appellant for one of these).

'I think it would be fun. I think it's time for Carmel to look within itself to see how fun a Carmel Fair would be.'
— Bob Fischer

Also on the agenda, Hamaichi Japanese Restaurant owner Hirofumi Ichimaru is appealing a planning commission denial of his request to allow "karaoke" singing at his restaurant. The restaurant is located on the southwest corner of Dolores and Fifth. The request was denied at the commission's July 25 meeting.

Karaoke is an "open mike" form of entertainment that allows bar and restaurant patrons to sing along with popular recorded music. The commission decided karaoke can be considered live entertainment, which under city codes is not allowed in Carmel.

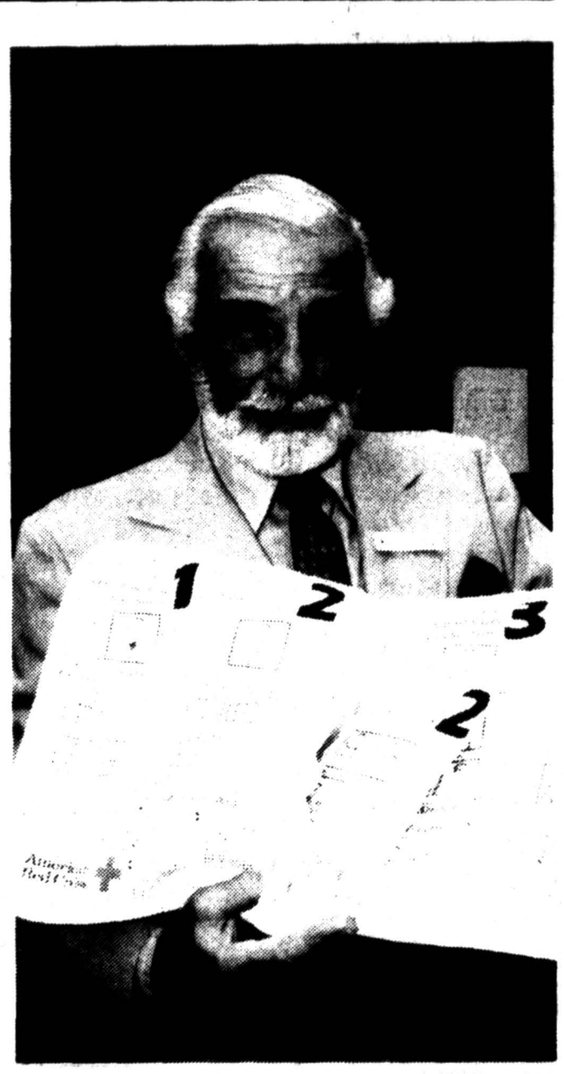
Also on the Dec. 4 agenda, Carmel landowner Jody LeTowt is appealing an Aug. 22 planning commission denial of a rezone request.

LeTowt wants to rezone buildings on the west side of Mission between Fourth and Fifth so he can sell them to Creme Carmel Restaurant owner Craig Ling. The restaurateur wants to move his eatery, which is now located on the corner of San Carlos and Seventh, to LeTowt's property.

LeTowt's two buildings are situated in the residential-limited commercial zone where restaurants aren't allowed. The structures border the service-commercial district however, and two other restaurants now operate on the same street.

In the denial, the commission found the rezone would compromise implementation of the land use element of the General Plan.

In other business, the council will make 15 appointments to the Carmel Tommorrow Committee. This committee's purpose is to prepare a report on what Carmel should be like in 20 years and beyond.



FOR MORE than 20 years Philip Gray, who died last week of heart failure, was active in organizing Red Cross activities and blood drives for Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula.

Carmel High will honor its first music teacher in musical tribute

By DAVID LELAND

CARMEL HIGH School's first full-time music teacher will have the honor of leading the current school band tonight in a tribute to the school's Golden Anniversary.

"The kids are very good," said John Farr, 78, who took over the music program in 1946. Farr, who is only one of three music directors in Carmel High history (Henry Avila and Dick Robins, the current director, are the other two), will lead the band through musical numbers of the 1940s.

'I can remember the first time we (band) got out on the football field. We didn't have uniforms, we had white shirts.'
— John Farr

The concert is scheduled for 7 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 29, at Sunset Cultural Center, under the direction of Richard Robins.

Other selections include rock 'n' roll from the '50s, and favorites of each decade through 1990. A reception will follow the concert.

One of the founding members of the Monterey Symphony, Farr is an accomplished brass musician, who eventually took over as the orchestra's manager.

Farr said that when he took over at the high school there was no band, just an orchestra and chorus.

"I spent my time building up the department," says Farr, whose favorite instrument has always been the French horn. "By the second year I had a band started."

Of course, Farr was somewhat ahead of his time.

"I can remember the first time we (band) got out on the football field. We didn't have uniforms, we had white shirts," says Farr, who retired 12 years ago, after spending his last 10 years with the district instructing elementary school children.

When they did purchase uniforms, the music department attempted to live up to the school's reputation.

"Carmel at that time was quite an elite school," says Farr, who still substitutes occasionally at peninsula schools. "People would come down Highway 1 and ask, "What's that country club?' "

The first band outfits looked like gray business suits, with military caps and plumes. They were later traded in for more traditional wear.

Farr currently serves as musical director at the First Methodist Church in Pacific Grove.

He also manages to keep his chops up.

"I still piddle on the trumpet," says Farr. "I still mess around with music."

Fire department sets food, toy drive for Christmas

THE CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA Fire Department is conducting a drive to raise food and toys for needy families on the peninsula this Christmas. The drive began the day after Thanksgiving and will continue until Christmas Eve.

The fire department will be accepting donations in the form of canned and non-perishable foods, workable toys, money and any other appropriate gifts. Any and all contributions will be deeply appreciated. Once collected, the donated items will be distributed by the Salvation Army.

Donations may be dropped off at the Carmel-by-the-Sea Fire Department on Sixth Street between San Carlos and Mission, daily from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m.

For further information, contact Mitch Kastros at the fire department, 624-1718.

Community activist Phil Gray dies

By DAVID LELAND

WITH THE passing of community activist Philip Gray last week, the energy level in the Carmel area appears to have been turned down a notch.

'Phil was one of those rare people who always said what he thought and backed it up with his actions. We're all better off because of him.'
— Sidney Morris

The dynamic Gray, blood program coordinator for Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula and the Carmel chapter of the American Red Cross, died at Community Hospital of heart failure Nov. 19 at the age of 77.

"Phil was one of those rare people who always said what he thought and backed it up with his actions," said local attorney Sidney Morris, who served with Gray for many years on the Red Cross board of directors. "We're all better off because of him."

Indeed, the zeal with which Gray organized the area's blood program earned him respect and admiration from his peers.

"He was a very energetic and dedicated volunteer," said Joy Schnal, president of the auxiliary board at Community Hospital, who worked with Gray for more than 15 years. "He took any job and did it very seriously and did the most he could with it."

Schnal added that Gray was responsible for initiating the mobile blood testing unit program on the peninsula. He also included high school students at on-campus blood drives.

The industrious Gray was single-minded once

Call for action

Dear Editor:

I was a witness (a few minutes after the fact), to the unfortunate accident which occurred at the corner of San Carlos and Sixth avenues the morning of Tuesday, Nov. 27.

As an employee at the Zantman Art Galleries, I have occasion to cross that intersection going west-to-east (or vice-versa) several times a day. I am always careful to watch my step here, because all too often, drivers proceeding north-south or south-north on San Carlos appear to be oblivious to the stop signs. Most frequently, the offenders are tourists unfamiliar with our town.

After yesterday's accident, I began to wonder seriously why this intersection should be particularly dangerous. To test out my suspicions, I drove northward and southward on San Carlos across Sixth Avenue. What I found confirmed by suspicions: the stop signs are not optimally visible.

The sign on the northwest corner is obscured by a young tree which has leaves all the way to the ground. Going north, a driver is confronted with a confusing array. The stop sign is visible, all right, but it is in deep shadow under a tree, and right in front of it is a parking sign which attracts more immediate attention than the stop sign.

I say – get rid of the young tree, move the parking sign, and prune up the large tree on the southeast corner.

Not-so-clean sweep

Dear Editor:

Have you noticed since Carmel has leased the new beautiful street sweeper that the streets are not as clean as with the old street sweeper?

I live on south Casanova and our street has not been cleaned in over four weeks, until last Wednesday, which leaves me to believe either the new sweeper is broken down or they are saving it so it will look like new when the five-year lease is up.

Twelfth Street looks like it hasn't been swept for even a longer period of time and same for San Lucia Street.

As you know, oil and water don't mix well when it starts to rain and that holds true for pine needles, when mixed with water – it could cause some accidents.

I'm sure downtown is swept often, but how about cleaning the rest of our streets once a week like most cities do?

Hysterical revisionism

Dear Editor:

Once again, Barbara missed the mark. The post office document published in part in the centennial edition of the Carmel Valley Sun hasn't been "decertified." I saw the original photocopy myself and found that it was corroborated in all respects, except for the name of the first postmaster, by all other postal records, as well as The History of California Post Offices by H.E. Sally, the standard published reference work on the subject. As a historian, I view those sources as outweighing all other evidences.

However, there is an element of truth in Mrs. Mark's complaint that she doesn't deserve to be labeled a "historical revisionist." "Hysterical revisionist" yes, but she obviously hasn't contributed enough factual information to the very high level debate about the Carmel Post Office to be considered a historical revisionist. In fact, Mrs. Mark hasn't contributed any evidence to this debate, nothing but continual sniping against historians who've taken the trouble to research the history of Carmel Valley, which Mrs. Mark claims to know intuitively, but keeps it all to herself.

Among the most glaring errors of fact in her letter to The Pine Cone, in which she quotes words from one of my previous letters, is her contention that I'm a spokesman for the Carmel Valley History Society. I have never been a spokesman, and am no longer a member of that society. And I'm not surprised that Mrs. Mark finds the publications of historians associated with that society, past and present, to be "distasteful," though I don't know what she means by adding the word "behavior" – "distasteful behavior."

Who does this woman think she is, anyway? Either she's attempting to suppress an accurate account of Carmel Valley's history by her slander, or else she's gunning for people like myself, whose known political viewpoints she opposes – or both. But if she's read the Nov. 21 edition of The Weekly Sun, I expect that she's come to realize that I'm not so easy a Mark as she'd hoped.

Mrs. Mark's self-contradictory accounts of her own experiences with her family's ownership of the White Oak Inn sometime during the middle of this century are all well and good, but we're still waiting to hear her "objective" version of the rest of the history of Carmel Valley – with bated breath. Or does Mrs. Mark intend to sit in perpetual judgment on our efforts, without ever producing any facts of her own to back up her charges of unobjectivity and "commercial capitalization" against historians?

Speaking of one professional historian to a novice, I suggest that she apply the same business standards to our efforts as she does to her real estate speculations. But that would be ridiculous, wouldn't it? We don't make money that easily. It seems that Mrs. Mark is guilty of applying a double standard to historians, implying that we should serve the community's need for historical information out of altruism alone. Historians, like real estate speculators, have a right to turn a profit for our efforts.

Far from apologizing, as Mrs. Mark would have me do, I'm putting my word against hers as to what constitutes matters of fact and correct historical procedure in this study. I wonder whose word counts the most?

Unnecessary and costly election

THE BOARD of Directors of the Carmel Residents Association continues to believe that it would be a mistake for the city to authorize an election next March to decide by public voting the issue of whether or not to reduce the present Floor Area Ratio from 45 percent to 40 percent. Such a reduction has been approved by the city council thereby to increase the amount of open space on each buildable lot.

We oppose an election on this decision for the following reasons:

– At a cost of $8,000, the election would divert city funds from other more needed projects.

– An election would be costly for all citizens in terms of volunteer effort and financial support both of which would be needed by the opposing sides.

– Such a special election would cause great divisiveness in the community, with emotional and contradictory statements/accusations emanating from both sides. Example: even the question of proper wording for the ballot has caused severe disagreement.

– Such a special election would subvert the decision-making power of the city council and turn back the council's authority and responsibility to the voters. We believe the city council has responsibility to make such decisions. We agree with what Mayor Jean Grace stated so persuasively when this subject was debated at the council meeting on July 10th, "You can't buy a vote on the city council, but big money can buy votes in an election."

– We believe that the reduction in Floor Area Ratio from the present 45 percent to the council-approved 40 percent should be given a fair trial period, say two years. If the ordinance is given such a period of experiment, then it will be possible to judge if the reduction to 40 percent has been an effective reform. If the new limitation of 40 percent does not succeed, then there should be a review and reconsideration.

For these reasons we urge the Carmel City Council to allow Ordinance 90-08 with its provision for 40 percent Floor Area Ratio on 4,000 square foot lots to remain in effect.

CPR classes being offered

CPR SAVES more than 250 lives a day; the more people that know CPR, the more lives that can be saved.

With that in mind the Carmel Chapter of the American Red Cross offers CPR classes monthly throughout the year.

Classes are held at the Carmel Red Cross house at Eighth and Dolores. Classes include demonstrations and teaching of the Heimlich maneuver. Cost is $20 for the eight-hour class. A certificate will be presented upon completion.

For more information call the Red Cross at 624-6921.

Birth mothers group meets every month

A BIRTH mothers support group meets once a month at the Childrens Services Center in Monterey.

Birth mothers are women who have given their children up for adoption; the group allows these women to share their feelings with others, according to Teri Livingston, who has been a member of the 2-year-old group.

"There are a lot of women out there...and there's a lot of pain involved," she said. "This gives them a chance to talk about it. We're not a search group, but we have information on it."

The support group meets at 7 p.m. on the last Wednesday of each month at the center at 648 Pine Ave. in Pacific Grove. More information can be obtained by calling either Carol Bishop or Gayle Ward at Childrens Services Center of Monterey County, 649-3033.

Speakers on AIDS available for presentations

SPEAKERS FROM the AIDS Speakers Bureau of the Carmel Chapter of the American Red Cross are now available to speak to community groups, organizations or businesses on AIDS.

Presentations will include audio-visual materials and a variety of Red Cross pamphlets on AIDS.

Recently, 13 community volunteers have completed an intensive training course on AIDS and the transmission of the AIDS virus (HIV), as well as prevention and education strategies.

To schedule a presentation-workshop call 624-6921 with the date, time and meeting location of your group and a member of the speakers bureau will set up a presentation.

Meals on Wheels needs volunteers

DRIVERS AND other volunteers are needed to deliver 200 meals daily to shut-ins and the handicapped on the peninsula for Meals on Wheels.

According to Chuck Poland, a Carmel volunteer, 200 homes are served with three meals five days a week from Carmel Valley to Marina, but 22 volunteer drivers are needed daily to deliver those meals.

"We were seven drivers short the other day," said Poland, who has been pressed into service so often that he's driving almost daily now. "It means a lot to these people. You thank your lucky stars when you leave."

Poland said there are 22 routes, three of them in the Carmel area. One route usually takes from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. (including driving to and from the pick-up point in Pacific Grove).

Each shut-in is delivered a breakfast, one cold meal (usually sandwich, salad and juice), and one hot meal. He added that volunteers are also needed to make sandwiches and salads at the Meals On Wheels facility at 700 Jewell Ave. in Pacific Grove.

Almost all of the help is from volunteers, Poland said, so often the agency ends up shorthanded. If you would like to volunteer to help out, contact Meals on Wheels at 375-4454.

Meals on Wheels is a non-profit organization.

Red Cross sponsors first aid classes

THE CARMEL Chapter of the American Red Cross sponsors regular first aid classes at the chapter house located at Eighth and Dolores.

Water board puts lock on any new construction

By FRANK GEORGE

IN A 4-1 decision on Nov. 26, the water board approved a moratorium on new water hook-ups that will be enacted on Jan. 1, 1991.

This means peninsula builders cannot obtain new water permits after that date, and permits under process will be frozen unless approved before then. The moratorium will not be lifted until new water sources are developed.

"Water use has increased over 1,000 acre feet over the past five years, due to new construction," noted Dick Heuer, chairman of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District board.

The Nov. 14 approval was a first reading for the new ordinance; the second reading will be held Dec. 13. Heuer voted for the moratorium, as did directors Dale Hekhuis, Ken Long and Karin Strasser Kauffman.

Director Jim Hughes voted against the moratorium, and Director Paul Davis abstained due to a conflict of interest.

Since his term as mayor of Pacific Grove has expired, Director Morris Fisher stepped down from the board. Water district Atty. David Laredo pointed out the mayor who serves on the board must be in office in order to vote. Another peninsula mayor will be appointed to fill Fisher's seat in December.

The directors also approved the second reading of an ordinance setting a 16,744-acre-foot annual water supply for the peninsula, with the same split in the voting.

The new supply is 16 percent less than the 20,000 acre feet the peninsula assumed would be available when the allocation system was first enacted in the early 1980s. The 16,744-acre-foot supply is the lowest of five options analyzed by the district. It allows no water for new construction, which created the need for the moratorium.

Under the moratorium, property owners can make additions to their houses only if they can prove there will be no intensification of water use. It was pointed out this can be done by installing retrofit and other water-saving devices on new and existing water appliances. Homeowners with existing retrofit devices may not add to their water consumption.

Users will not receive off-site credit for new additions under the ordinance. This means savings achieved on other properties cannot be transferred to another building site.

Members of the building industry at the meeting feared the board may opt to uphold the suspension even after new supplies are developed. Water district attorney David Laredo said the directors would have to have a "solid" reason to do that when new resources are tapped.

One new source is the Cal-Am well on Peralta Avenue in Seaside. At its Nov. 14 meeting, the Seaside Planning Commission approved the well, and the district expects to bring it on line next spring.

Thirty-four speakers addressed the board Monday on the two issues, and the crowd spilled out the front door at the Monterey City Council Chambers on Pacific Street in Monterey. Hughes pointed out that 29 of the speakers were against the moratorium or the water supply option.

"The second reading of these ordinances is scheduled on Dec. 13 so the district can ramrod them on Jan. 1," said local developer Hitoshi Kono. He said the board should have had the ordinances published in local newspapers ahead of time, making the public aware of them.

Lance McClair, mayor of Seaside, said in a letter to the board that the Seaside City Council opposes the moratorium. He said any limitations on building should be determined by the cities – not the water district.

Cal-Am General Manager Larry Foy was a strong opponent of the neww water supply figure. He wanted to know why the district chose an option which was not listed in the Environmental Impact Report.

The lowest selection published in the EIR was 17,500 acre feet, Foy said, noting that the directors added the 16,744 figure in a later ruling. Laredo countered the board's findings were justified and were explained in the resolution.

On the other hand, Flo Schaefer, newly elected mayor of Pacific Grove, said her city endorses both ordinances. She also noted that three of the winners in PG's recent city council elections supported them.

Representing the Residents' Water Committee, Fran Farina of Carmel Valley said the directors should review the moratorium "only if mandatory rationing has ceased."

Nevertheless, attorney Myron Etienne argued individuals with projects in process should be exempted from the suspension of hook-ups. He also urged the board to consider off-site allowances, saying the impact of the ordinance will be "so severe" on the construction industry.

IN OTHER action, the board received a report that said both reservoirs on the Carmel River are nearing "minimum pool."

This means the Los Padres and San Clemente dam reservoirs are drying to the point where the fish population in them are threatened. The Los Padres reservoir is expected to reach minimum pool in two weeks, according to district water resources manager Darby Fuerst.

As of Nov. 26, the San Clemente reservoir held 278 acre feet of water, meaning 92 acre feet are left before it reaches the 185 acre feet minimum pool level. The Los Padres reservoir has 92 acre feet to spare before reaching the 212 acre feet limit.

Although she said there is reason for concern, Henrietta Stern, public information representative for the district, said the low reservoir levels do not entail a serious threat to the public water supply. She noted most Cal-Am water is obtained from underground sources in the aquifer.

Fuerst said district fishery biologist Dave Dettman will be rescuing steelhead trout and trucking them to a new pond starting this week.

Be that as it may, the directors were concerned by the low level. They cited a clause in the rationing ordinance which states the board can begin moving for a tougher rationing ordinance if the Los Padres Dam can no longer release enough water for the fish population.

Board members directed staff to investigate the situation and report back to the board in January when the board will reassess the problem. Directors cautioned that the rainy season has just begun, and the board must hold a public hearing before voting on a new rationing ordinance.

Stern noted further rationing wouldn't help the reservoir situation, but would simply conserve the ground water supply.

In other business, the board received a report from associate hydrologist Bruce LaClergue that showed non-Cal-Am water use is up 7 percent.

"This scares the hell out of me, frankly," said Hekhuis. He said the increase takes the rationing reduction down from 30 percent to 23 percent.

Subsequently, the board members asked the staff to investigate the increased use of non-Cal-Am water and report back to the board at the Dec. 13 meeting.

Water district office inundated with requests for new hookups

By FRANK GEORGE

FACED WITH the threat of a moratorium on new water hookups, peninsula builders and architects are swamping the permit department at the water district office.

Michael Ricker, appropriately titled "water demand manager" at the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District administrative office, said one architect came in with 10 projects at 8 a.m. on Nov. 26.

"We're probably processing between 40 and 50 permits per week," Ricker said. He said business has picked up dramatically since the water board first discussed the moratorium at its Nov. 5 meeting.

At that meeting, the board adopted a 16,744 acre foot annual water supply option, which created a necessity for the moratorium "until a new supply is developed." Public hearings were held for both the supply option and the moratorium at the Nov. 26 meeting, and the board approved first readings for both ordinances.

The second readings will take place at the Dec. 13 meeting.

Ricker noted the normal number of new applications ranges from 10 to 20 per week, and it generally takes one to two days for the permits to be issued. But with the wave of new inquiries, he said some of the documents may not be issued until January.

"We're getting a lot of phone calls as well, which takes away time from processing permits," Ricker added. He said his office has been receiving phone inquiries from peninsula property owners from all over the state.

Ricker said he doesn't think the new applicants are trying to "speculate on water." He pointed out that in order to apply, prospective builders must first show a "near-term need" – meaning they have already obtained go-aheads to build from planning commissions and other city agencies before approaching the district.

Those who made the considerable investments in the drawings and the approval process are normally ready to build, Ricker said. Aside from that, he added, Cal-Am Water Co. normally does not issue a water meter unless contruction is already underway.

Ricker added if builders do not meet the near-term need criteria within a year, the district would then be compelled to investigate the situation.

Asked if additions to existing structures will fall under the impending limits, Ricker said they will unless the builder can offset increased water use on the site. He said usage can be reduced to that point by installing retrofit systems.

Ricker noted however, that the district will not allow transfers of water credit. This means homeowners who own other properties cannot tap from those allotments to fulfill a new need.

For those who will be drawing ground water for their new building site, Ricker said water permits normally aren't necessary for such people because the district doesn't have jurisdiction over private wells – that responsibility goes to the county of Monterey.

"We normally don't even see them," he added.

Be that as it may, Ricker noted an earlier ordinance set a 110-acre-feet limit on new water hook-ups for 1990. He said presently, only 50 percent of the allowance has been used up, saying he'd be surprised if the district reached that limit in spite of the current rush of requests for permits.

Fish ladder will be a unique feature of proposed dam

By FRANK GEORGE

A $10 TO $12 million fish ladder facility, featuring radial gates and zig-zagging ladders, is one of the unique features of the proposed New Los Padres Dam.

If the dam is OK'd by state and federal agencies, a small barrier downstream from the 150-foot-high dam would stop adult steelhead trout that are migrating from the ocean to spawn. The fish would then swim around the small dam and go up a short criss-crossing ladder to a trapping pool, where they would be captured and trucked upstream.

Monterey Peninsula Water Management District officials say the approval process for a dam should take at least a year, and estimates for the dam's completion (including the laborious permit process), range from 5 to 10 years.

Nevertheless, plans have been drawn for facilities that would protect and augment the Carmel River fishery.

"Experience shows that getting steelhead trout through reservoirs is not always a successful venture," explained Dave Dettman, fisheries biologist for the district. He said building a ramp that would flow directly over the top of the dam would be "extremely expensive." Such facilities only provide aesthetic benefits over trucking the trout, Dettman said.

The biologist said the downstream migration of smaller steelhead headed toward the ocean would first be blocked by two radial gates. After bypassing two screens that allow water to seep through but not fish, the trout would be swept by the current into a canal. Then they would be whisked down shallow channels into a holding area. From there, they would be trucked downstream.

Dettman said the younger fish headed out to sea, called smolts, are either nearing or undergoing the process of transforming into fish adapted to seawater. This process is called smoltification.

The older fish swimming toward the ocean, called kelts, are the few surviving adult steelhead that have already spawned, Dettman said.

Kelts, smolts and everything in between take advantage of fish ladders on the smaller existing dams on the river, said Dettman.

The San Clemente Dam, located 19 miles from the mouth of the river, has an 85-foot-high fish ladder that helps fish heading both upstream and downstream.

A short ladder leads upstream-swimming fish into a trap at the old Los Padres Dam, which is located upstream from Carmel Valley Village. The steelhead are trucked from the dam to the Los Padres Reservoir, located 12 miles southeast of the village.

Dettman said fish heading downstream at the Los Padres Dam slide down the long spillway into a pool below. Ocean-bound fish either pass over the spillway or go down the ladder at the San Clemente facility, Dettman said.

"This (the Los Padres spillway) is probably not a good channel for migrating smolts," Dettman said. He also said the fish sometimes have a hard time finding the ladder at the San Clemente fish facility.

When fish are using the Los Padres ladder, Cal-Am workers sometimes turn off the water valve and count the trout when they get to the holding tank. Dettman said during these times, onlookers can see the fish as they dart up the ladder.

Dettman said there hasn't been an upstream adult spawning migration on the Carmel river since 1987, but some spawining fish trapped in the river probably produced eggs in 1988 and 1989.

Dettman noted that after they have spawned, surviving adults too weak to go back downstream often hold up in deep holes during the summer.

Due to the drought, Dettman said the quantity of smolts in the river now is poor or fair at best. And, according to Gerald Haas, operations manager at Cal-Am, both dam ladders aren't operating now.

"There simply aren't enough fish," Haas said.

Dettman said state laws governing fish runs have existed since the 19th century. He said gold mining had blocked many of the Sierra streams, upsetting the fragile process.

FISH LADDER facilities for spawning steelhead trout will be one of the features of the proposed New Los Padres Dam.

Traffic mishap

MIRACULOUSLY, NO one was seriously injured in this traffic accident that took place around 9 a.m. Tuesday, Nov. 27, at the intersection of Sixth Avenue and San Carlos Street. According to Carmel police, Carmel resident Purnie McMahon, 68, was driving south on San Carlos Street in her 1984 blue Mercedes Benz when she was struck broadside by Joan Artz, 33, also a Carmel resident, who was travelling west on Sixth Avenue in a 1982 brown Datsun pickup truck. Two parked cars on San Carlos Street received minor damage when hit by the cars during the accident. Carmel firefighters used the "Jaws of Life" to free McMahon from her car; she was taken to Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula where she was treated and released. Artz told paramedics that she was unhurt and refused any medical treatment. McMahon, who told police that she had stopped at the stop sign at Sixth and San Carlos before proceeding forward, was cited by police for failing to yield the right of way. (Mac McDonald photo.)

Knowledge of CPR could save lives

MORE THAN 70 percent of all CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) rescues occur in the home on an individual known by the rescuer.

Statistics show that more than 650,000 people in the United States died from heart attacks in 1986 and that heart disease is the leading cause of death in Monterey County.

On the other hand CPR saves more than 250 lives a day; the more people that know CPR, the more lives that can be saved.

With that in mind the Carmel Chapter of the American Red Cross offers CPR classes monthly all year.

Classes are held at the Carmel Red Cross house at Eighth and Dolores. Classes include demonstrations and teaching of the Heimlich maneuver. Cost is $20 for the eight-hour class. A certificate will be presented upon completion.

For more information call the Red Cross at 624-6921.

Students learning the satisfaction of giving gifts

By FRANK GEORGE

THIS YEAR, students from Robert Louis Stevenson Lower and Middle Schools are learning that it's just as much fun to give as it is to receive.

The youngsters managed to gather close to 150 gifts for children of migrant farm workers in Salinas. The idea was spearheaded by Nancy Springer-Ochs, whose daughters, Amy and Elizabeth, attend the Carmel private school.

Springer-Ochs convinced Gari Ann Truscott, the school's principal, to hold a gift-wrapping party at the school this year rather than the traditional Thanksgiving food festivities.

"We saw that a couple of schools around the peninsula were eating and throwing food away, well, it didn't happen here," Springer-Ochs said.

She said she and Nancy Costello will bring the gifts over to migrant families in Salinas during the first of week of December.

"It was a little sad because it was a gift and I had to give it up," said seventh-grader Karri Atherton, who yielded a toy microwave oven. "I was glad someone else would get it, though."

The presents were tagged, "to a boy" or "to a girl," with the age range specified. One package was tagged, "To a boy – 2."

Some of the children brought in more than one gift, and some of the presents were old but well-loved.

"It's kinda sad, yeah. I've had them for a long time," said Elizabeth Ochs, a second-grader who gave up her Mickey Mouse clock and a Barbie doll, among other treasures.

Springer-Ochs said she and Costello will play Santa to the recipients because some of them might be embarassed about receiving presents from other kids. She noted many of the children's parents were laid-off this year without unemployment compensation. Thus, if not for the benevolence of the young Carmel students, a few Christmas trees in Salinas wouldn't be graced with presents this year.

When not brainstorming ideas for her children's curriculum, Springer-Ochs is a historian at the Harrison Memorial Library, and she works at the Carmel Chapter of the American Red Cross.

"My feeling was, sometimes you have to learn how to give without recognition from the recipient," Springer-Ochs said. "Sometimes, you just give."

Panetta says U.S. must be cautious about waging war

By DAVID LELAND

WITH THE country poised on the brink of war in the Middle East, Rep. Leon Panetta is one of a number of congressmen calling for the president to follow the letter of the law when waging war.

Specifically, Panetta believes that the U.S. Constitution clearly limits the president's power to declare war without the consent of Congress.

Panetta said President Bush should spend at least as much time courting Congress as he has spent wooing world leaders on planned aggression in Kuwait.

"Surely if he (Bush) feels that is necessary he should be seeking permission from the Congress of the United States," said Panetta in an interview in his Monterey office.

Along with conducting public hearings on the issue, Panetta said the United States should give the imposed economic sanctions sufficient time to work.

Like many experts, Panetta is convinced that fighting in the Middle East would take a heavy toll on American lives.

"A Middle East war would not be a Granada or Panama," said Panetta, referring to recent military exploits that were short-lived and resulted in relatively small losses. "This would be a much bloodier war."

Panetta added that penisula residents echo worries reflected across the nation.

"My constituents share the concern and want to make sure that every possible alternative (to war) has been exhausted," he said.

Panetta is also seizing the opportunity to drum home the idea that the United States cannot rely on the unstable Middle East for its main source of energy: oil.

"We never seem to learn our lesson," said Panetta, referring to the oil embargo imposed by Middle East oil producers in the mid-'70s. "We get hooked on cheap oil. Now we're being held hostage again."

"We can't continue to pay this price of being dependent on a major resource from an unstable part of the world."

Panetta's staff is currently preparing legislation that will restore tax credits and grants for creating alternative energy sources.

Abandoned by Reagan in the early '80s, the law will hopefully spark research in areas such as solar power, gasahol, ethanol, geothermal and wind energy.

'We never seem to learn our lesson. We get hooked on cheap oil. Now we're being held hostage again.'
— Rep. Leon Panetta

The idea of offering incentives for research is nothing new.

"The fact is we did that with the oil companies to develop oil," Panetta said. "(And) we did it with gas and oil."

he began a task.

"He didn't go to the little person, he went right to the top," said Schnal, adding that Gray could turn into a veritable dynamo once he took up a cause. "He had a great deal of spunk."

Born June 20, 1913 in Chicago, Ill., Gray moved to Carmel in 1969, retiring after a 42-year career in interior design in Chicago.

Gray took over as blood program coordinator in 1985, leading local blood drives and speaking out on the need to donate blood.

"If you had an arm, you gave blood," said 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman, who also worked with Gray in connection with the Highlands-Bixby Advisory Committee. "I really counted on him; he was a grassroots organizer par excellance."

In addition to his work with blood donation, Gray was also active in helping raise money to start a local hospice program and helping prevent cutbacks in the number of firefighters in Carmel Highlands.

Gray was a Carmel Highlands fire commissioner; and disaster chairman, board member and publicity director for the Red Cross in Carmel.

His wife, Eunice, is an author and artist.

He is also survived by a son, Michael, an actor living in Beverly Hills; a brother, Richard, of Winnetka, Ill.; and two granddaughters.

At Gray's request, no services were held. After cremation at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea, his ashes were scattered at sea.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions be sent to the American Cancer Society, to Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula or to the American Red Cross.

Sampling of New Year's Eve celebrations — 1991 style

By RAY A. MARCH
Travel Correspondent

NEW YEAR'S Eve is a holiday when we either privately tuck ourselves away early or publicly rejoice with a bunch of strangers. It's a vicarious kick or a downright, hands-on jam. Some sit back and watch the time zones roll by on television while others roll up the carpet.

Shedding one year and welcoming in another is a true tradition, and whether it's celebrated at home, on a guest ranch, on a Canadian mountain, at a five-star golf resort or in a grand ballroom, it's something that brings us to our feet — if only for the moment.

Whether traveling by air or armchair, here is a sampling of this season's New Year's Eve celebrations — 1991 style.

San Francisco's Hotel Juliana

Practical matters first. This little European-style hotel doesn't offer a glowing gala or even a warming port on New Year's Eve, but it fills a need.

From Nov. 15 through Jan. 2 the Juliana, just two blocks off Union Square, will provide its house guests complimentary cab rides from the party of their choice back to the hotel — at a special $60 per night room rate. What more needs to be said?

The Mandarian Oriental

Some traditionalists will say New Year's Eve originated in San Francisco. If so, the Mandarian Oriental may well be their Mecca.

As if dinner at Silks isn't pleasure enough ($125 each with a selection of wines accompanying each course, $90 without wine), guests will also be treated to champagne and truffles on the 47th floor glass-enclosed "Skybridge."

Dinner from 6 p.m. to midnight. The incredible "Skybridge" view with champagne from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m.

MGM Grand Air

If you still aren't automatically on Ivana Trump's guest list you can still make it — although it will cost.

MGM Grand Air and Trump's Plaza Hotel have a New Year's Eve teaser that begins in LA, detours for two nights to NYC, and then returns to LA.

For $2,700 one person or two can fly round trip on MGM Grand Air's new "class coach." And this is not just a play on words. Grand Class Coach service comes with the unveiling of MGM's reconfigured DC-8 Super 62 aircraft. To say MGM Air is luxurious is to be redundant.

The price includes a Caribbean Carnival Masked Ball at the elegantly restored hotel, chauffeured limousine between JFK and The Plaza and, of course, a multi-course gourmet dinner accompanied by champagne and Ivana. Festive carnival costumes or black tie mandatory.

Marriot Castle Harbor — Bermuda

If there is a jet lag lapse, travelers can catch up at the New Year's Eve open bar — it's really open. Five hours straight in both the Bay View and Blossoms Lounges.

The Windsor dining room will serve a five-course gourmet dinner and The Mikado will offer the same in Japanese cuisine. Choose one for $115 per person. Thoughtfully, there is a morning-after breakfast buffet.

Lake Louise and Jasper, Alberta

A midnight torchlight parade, ice skating, sleigh rides, a children's party and elegant sit-down dinner are among the choices this New Year's Eve at the Post Hotel, Chateau Lake Louise, Deer Lodge or Jasper Park Lodge in Alberta.

For the well-conditioned, The Post Hotel starts with a sleigh ride at 4:30 in the afternoon, moves on to cocktails at 6, an eight-course dinner at 7 and dancing at 10:30 — all for $125 each.

Chateau Lake Louise has a wildly diverse evening that includes an $8.50 children's party from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. (no midnight craziness for the tykes), a $49 "Skier's Frolic" at the Glacier Saloon that goes from 9 to 2 a.m. (good luck!), and a $98 New Year's Eve party in the Edleweiss dining room.

Banff

More extensive dinners.

Two of the Banff Springs Hotel dining rooms — the Rob Roy and Alhambra — are featuring eight-course dinners at $125 per person. The Alberta Room will serve five courses at $110 each.

Quail Lodge

Backyards are usually considered safe these days, and what better backyard than our own Quail Lodge?

Quail is rightfully extending the challenge of "Have a Five-Star New Year's Eve." Certainly no other resort on this peninsula can say that.

This annual black and white ball begins with a hosted cocktail and hors d'oeuvres reception at 7:30 p.m. Dinner and dancing begins at 8:30. Champagne, of course. All for $145 per. Guests can reserve overnight accommodations with morning-after in-room breakfast for another $100 each.

By the way, the black tie is optional.

The Arizona Biltmore

Continuing at the five-star level, The Arizona Biltmore has a reputation for throwing traditional holiday parties that goes back to 1929, the eve of The Great Depression.

If deja vu presents no problem, then The Biltmore may be a tranquil setting for watching 1991 unfurl. There are three New Year's Eve dinners competing for attention. Without much PR fanfare they are simply designated as "Festive," "Elegant" and "Gourmet." Price tags are $75, $90 and $100 respectively, not including accommodations.

Room rates include a deluxe for two at $149 with complimentary sparkling champagne and chocolate-dipped strawberries, or a luxury suite, limousine service, room service breakfast, the bubbly and chocolates at $425. Both humanely provide late check-outs.

The Wigwam

Not more five-star temptations!

Yes. The Wigwam (The Pine Cone, Nov. 15), is just down the road from The Arizona Biltmore and it's got a deal that's difficult to ignore.

There is a one-night, $50 rate per room, for guests attending the New Year's Eve celebration in the Sachem Ballroom. The party promises to be a Sonoran Desert theme, complete with adobe buildings, cacti and an epicurean feast of Southwestern cuisine from the resort's Arizona Kitchen, plus contemporary dance music.

Total package, including room, is $195 per couple. For families there is in-house babysitting and young adults are invited to the Teen Room for food, music and "mocktails."

Spanish Springs Ranch

This is a desert of a different calling. No well-tailored golf courses here.

Spanish Springs is a working cattle ranch that caters to dudes looking for horseback adventure. The folks up there go all out to show their guests a good time.

Example: New Year's Eve lasts five days and four nights. There's horseback riding, sleigh rides, cross-country skiing and a live band on New Year's Eve. Plenty of action for the kids, too. All for $100 a day for adults, $200 total for children four to 17; meals included.

Spanish Springs Ranch, which is actually in California, is two hours or more (depending on the weather), northwest of Reno on Highway 395. Take Southwest Air from Oakland for $58 round trip to Reno. Someone will meet you.

The Westin Crown Center

This Kansas City hotel isn't afraid to tell it like it is.

The Westin Crown Center is offering four theme party choices, but our favorite is the "Ballroom Gala Blowout." Let's face it, 1990 hasn't been that great a year and with the recession draped over us like a shroud, a blowout in Kansas City just might be the answer to getting 1991 off to a happy start.

American cooking is back, not that it ever left Kansas City, and the price is right. The other parties: "Theatrical New Year's," "Benton's Bash" and "Exotic New Year's." Prices vary from $22.50 per person for early seating to $70 per during the late evening blowout.

Added wrappings include a luxurious guest room for $81, New Year's Eve only. Not a bad deal if you're in the neighborhood.

The Inn At Spanish Bay

Ever since Marvin Davis threw that instantly legendary open house at the Inn at Spanish Bay in the fall of '87, this resort has "party" written all over its port-cochere.

Dec. 31 will be no different. Pebble's professional party planners are calling this year's pyrotechnics simply "The Party." Nothing modest at Spanish Bay. Haughty perhaps, but certainly not modest.

For $145 per person guests can roam every restaurant and ballroom at will where they'll discover different dinner buffets in each. Unlimited open bars and flowing champagne are among the enticements.

Stay the night for $550 double, including the New Year's Eve party.

The family that runs together, stays together

By DAVID LELAND

THERE'S MORE than one way to bring a once closely knit family back together after a tragedy.

But would you believe running with 25,000 other joggers in the 26.2-mile New York City Marathon is one of them?

"We just got swept along," says Dr. Terry Moran, a Carmel resident and local cardiologist, remembering the multitudes of athletes storming the streets of New York in the five-borough run.

The "we" Moran refers to would be his wife, Lydia, five other Moran family members, plus one additional spouse.who entered the race in an effort to regain a sense of family unity and also raise money to help cancer research.

The tale began two years ago when Moran's mother died just seven months after being diagnosed with breast cancer. In addition to a sense of overwhelming sadness, the family lost its once-sterling line of communication upon her death.

"Mom was the hub of the family and kept us together," says Moran, who lives with Lydia and their four children in Hatton Fields. "You knew you could check with mom and see how everyone else was doing."

All that changed when Patricia Moran died.

"There's so much emotional upset that you go through and you end up taking it out on those around you," says Moran, 44. "This (race) really kind of pulled us together."

The concept of bringing the family together through the marathon was the brainchild of Terry's sister, Stephanie Moran Bernardy.

It was Bernardy who learned that, for the first time this year, the New York Marathon had become a charitable event, joining forces with philanthropist Armand Hammer's Stop Cancer campaign.

The probable cause for this unlikely union occured when Fred Lebow, director of the marathon and president of the 29,200-member New York Road Runners Club for 18 years, was diagnosed with brain cancer. Lebow's cancer is now in remission.

The race was unofficially dubbed "Fred, This Run's for You." Runners were asked to get per-mile pledges with donations being matched by federal funds.

"Anyone who said 'Hello' we asked if they would donate $1 a mile," says Lydia, 35, adding that the Moran family collected between $6,000 and $7,000 for cancer research.

For the race, the Moran family wore brightly colored hats emblazoned with "This Run's for You, Fred and Mom."

"His (Terry's) mom was pulling us through and was with every one of us," says Lydia, a former nurse who is now a full-time mother.

BEFORE DESCENDING upon New York from various parts of California and Boston, the Morans began training last April to work toward their goal. Continued on page 11

The family that runs together--

Only Terry and his brother, Mark, had ever entered a marathon.

Locally, Terry and Lydia ran along Scenic Drive and at Point Lobos for shorter runs. For long distances every other weekend they jogged between 12 and 22 miles along 17 Mile Drive in Pebble Beach.

'There's so much emotional upset that you go through and you end up taking it out on those around you. This (race) really kind of pulled us together.'

— Dr. Terry Moran

Each weekend family members contacted each other by telephone to make sure everyone was following the training regime.

The only time the family actually ran together before the marathon occured in an 18-mile run during a Hawaiian vacation.

None of the Morans were able to squeeze in a full 26 miles prior to the New York race.

Not to worry. The entire family finished without a hitch.

While Lydia was pleased with a time of 4 hours and 57 minutes, Terry says his mark of 4 hours and 30 minutes can and will be improved upon when he returns to New York next year to re-enter the marathon.

"It was a fun race," says Terry, adding that the massive amount of people entering the race necessitates a different strategy. "But when you're not doing well, you want to go back and do it again."

Terry plans to knock an hour off of his time at next year's race.

"It's a helluva way to see New York," he says.

Lydia, who had never even jogged before the recent trip, has now joined Terry in training and is enjoying the lifestyle.

"We're trying to work out some kind of running schedule that's realistic," says Terry, adding that between four children and his medical practice, time is a precious commodity. "It takes up so much time."

Terry adds that next year the family will pursue a large corporate sponsor, in addition to seeking private donations for cancer research.

The important thing, however, is that the Morans are once again back as a tightly knit family.

"This showed us that families can overcome cancer," says Terry. "That families have to pick up the pieces and go on."

Memorialize important people with a gift to library

ARE YOU agonizing over what to give a special child or adult friend for the Holidays? Think about books for the Harrison Memorial Library. Part of the Carmel Public Library Foundation's fund drive to buy much-needed books for the library is an opportunity to honor or memorialize important people in your life and in our community.

"Response to the Book Program has been very gratifying," says CPLF Executive Director Maria Gitin, "In one month we have received over $12,000 for the Book Program and additional gifts amounting to $5,000 to operate the foundation."

Some of the gifts honor the following people: An Opera Video Collection has been named for Maggie Manheim, library assistant and volunteer at Harrison Main Library and other gifts have been received in honor of Jack Billwiller, CPLF president; Marguriette Teaff and Grace Tikosen.

Gifts memorializing those who have passed away have been received in the names of: Dr. Sally Patton, an internationally known expert in the study of gifted children; Steve Slatkow, a political activist and civil rights attorney; Madeline Hicks, a librarian and mother of CPLF board member John Hicks; and Hal Meyer, a tireless worker for the Salvation Army and stepfather of Harrison Memorial Library Administrative Assistant Stephanie Pearce.

Other memorial gifts have been received, among others, in the names of: Patricia Cook, Terry N. Thomas, Frances Macrae, Donald A. McFann, Ernest E. Ellis, Elsie Guy Allen, and Leo and Zoe Harris.

"I hope in the holiday spirit people will share the gift of reading with our community by donating books to the library" says library director Margaret Pelikan.

The City provides generous library support for its 5,000 residents by covering all personnel and maintenance expenses. Ninty-five percent of Carmel-by-the-Sea residents hold library cards. However, HML has approximately 13,000 card holders, 8,000 of whom live outside the city limits. HML does not receive any direct tax support for these 8,000 users. No other city library has this many users outside its city limits. Currently, the County of Monterey provides a contract that covers some of the expense of serving library patrons from the unincorporated areas.

However the existing County Library Services Contract is scheduled to expire in December 1991. When Monterey County terminates its present contract, it will reduce the library's operating budget by 60 percent. Even without that final cut, payments to the library have already decreased 27 percent since fiscal year 1987-88. Meanwhile, the cost of books and other materials has increased by 16 percent. Even if county funds were recovered, the library is already short 43 percent of what it needs to continue to provide books and programs. The Children's Library needs $7,500 more this year just to stay current.

For every $50 gift, a bookplate naming the donor and, if desired, designating in honor, or in memory of a special person is put in a new book in the library.

"Some books cost less, some cost more, but we found the average expense of putting a new book on the shelf to be close to $50" explained Pelikan. There are also opportunities to permanently name collections. Each section of the Dewey Decimal System from Metaphysics to History may be permanently endowed and named by a donor contributing $25,000. The Money will be invested, and interest only spent to assure that there will always be new books for our patrons.

"Harrison Memorial Library patrons have always demanded excellence, and until recently we have been able to provide it. We feel we still give excellent service from our dedicated library staff, but now we have to turn to the public to assist us in fulfilling our mission of providing the best and most current books and materials available."

Tax deductible contributions should be made payable and sent to:

Group hopes to ally CBA, cultural groups, city

By FRANK GEORGE

THERE'S A new, ambitious committee in town consisting of an unlikely alliance of the Carmel Business Association, cultural organizations and city hall.

The new group is the brainchild of Carmel City Councilman Ken White, who got the idea for the group when he read a survey which said that $3.35 is spent on a community for every dollar spent on a ticket to a cultural event.

A list of some of the committee's challenging plans includes:

– A Carmel visitor information hotline number that would be listed in local phone books.

– An updated Carmel information pamphlet that would be available to businesses for circulation with their mailers.

– An easily located Carmel Business Association (CBA) visitor information office (the office is currently located in Vandervort Court on San Carlos near Seventh, upstairs from Pizazz for Him and Her.

"We're very, very excited about the dialog that's been opened between the three sectors involved," said CBA President Gary Luce, who sits on the committee. Luce said it was amazing to discover how many goals the three groups have in common.

White first presented the idea for the group to the city council last summer. At that time, he also convinced Councilman Bob Fischer help him formulate the new group.

Representatives from the Bach Festival, the GroveMont Theater and the Monterey County Symphony are all participating on the committee.

White said the group will be focusing on cultural event ticket buyers who tend to stay longer and shop in the village. He said the city has never encouraged these visitors to stay in Carmel.

"We've always sort of let them stay where they wanted to stay," White said.

Asked about a possible location for the new CBA information office, White said that Sunset Center on San Carlos and Ninth has been suggested. He said the new office would offer information on tickets to upcoming cultural events as well as advice on the best local restaurants and inns.

White, who chairs the new committee, said it has met five times on a bi-weekly schedule. Aside from White and Fischer, City Administrator Doug Schmitz also belongs to the group.

The committee could be named "The Cultural and Hospitality Commission," White said.

Other members of the new group are: Jay Fowler (Bach Festival), David Wolf (Cypress Inn, CBA board), Stephen Moorer (GroveMont Theater), Joan DeVisser and Joe Trusket (Monterey County Symphony), Hoby Hooker (Pine Inn), and Tony Salameh and Bob Negri of the CBA.

Asked how soon the committee's projects might be implemented, White said, "Probably within the next couple of weeks we'll start getting real decisive."

Seniors program needs participants

IN SEPTEMBER 1987 the Carmel-by-the-Sea Police Department began a program to benefit senior citizens of the community in two ways.

First, senior citizens who live alone and are often "shut-in" their residences with little or no contact with friends or relatives, can be provided with the security of knowing that someone does truly care about their welfare. Also, those concerned with their physical well-being will have someone to check on them daily.

Second, seniors interested in participating in some type of community program will be able to work with those in their own peer group by volunteering to place these daily telephone calls to the recipients of the program.

Currently, the department has a full staff of volunteers, however, anyone wishing to be placed on an alternate list to fill in when another caller is unable to make it or is away on vacation, is encouraged to call for information.

Anyone living alone, whether concerned about their health or not, and all those seniors wishing to make new friends or just have the opportunity to talk with someone new each day is encouraged to participate in this program.

Telephone calls are made daily by a volunteer beginning at 9:30 a.m. No participant is ever restricted to their home; they need only contact the police department in advance if they plan to be away during the time the calls are placed to avoid any confusion. If someone fails to answer their telephone, a patrol unit is sent by to conduct a welfare check at the residence.

Anyone interested in becoming a part of this program should contact Desk Officer Cathy Dampier at Carmel Police Department, 624-6403.

Turkey talk

IT'S A fact; 30 percent of the Thanksgiving turkeys in America had their picture taken last Thursday just before they were carved and passed round the festive table. The cook, carver and guests at the groaning board were not included in the portrait. Tom T. basked solo in the flash bulb's glow, basted-golden-brown skin gleaming.

Why do so many Americans become food photographers one day a year? According to Carol Miller of the Butterball Turkey Talkline in Downers Grove, Ill., the ultimate goal of Thanksgiving chefs is a "picture perfect turkey."

This is not just the annual turkey snapshot for the family album. Hearts harken back to childhood memories and tradition takes precedence over convenience during the holidays. Cooking a 15 to 20-pound turkey is a momentous occasion for busy two-income couples and singles who regularly microwave their dinner or catch a quick bite after a late night at the office. Realizing that a precise plan of action and split-second timing are required to pull off a Thanksgiving just like mom's can be a humbling experience for fast-trackers. Turkeys don't come dehydrated and pre-packaged. Yet.

Sponsored by Swift Eckrich, the parent company for Butterball Turkeys, the Turkey Talkline 800 number is in effect from Nov. 23 to Dec. 21 to answer turkey-related questions. On Thanksgiving Day more than 7,000 calls to the Talkline ranged from queries such as, "How do I turn on my oven?" to, "My oven is too small. How do I get the turkey in?" to, "The turkey's ready, but the guests are late! What do I do now?" Turkey talkers shoot from the hip, using problem-solving techniques taught at Butterball U, a three-day intensive training course.

"One woman totally destroyed her turkey and served Swedish meatballs instead. We talked her through it and she realized it's enjoying the holiday that counts," recalled Supervisor Miller philosophically.

If you have a turkey on your menu for Christmas and would like to call the helpful ladies at the Turkey Talkline they can be reached weekdays at 1-800-323-4848 from 6 a.m. to 4 p.m.

GET IT RIGHT!

A Pebble Beach reader following the meandering of last week's "Coast & Country" column through the pages of the Pacific Grove Monarch was intrigued by an item deep in the calendar of upcoming events. It was reported that Minoru Isutani may not be able to come up with the final two million necessary to swing the financing on the Pebble Beach Co. sale.

"Two million?" quipped the reader. "If that's all he needs, two memberships in the new Pebble Beach Golf Club would take care of it."

"Coast & Country" claimed default by typo.

How does 200 million sound?

HEATHCLIFF WHERE ARE YOU?

Novelist Rosemary Rogers would love the Flanders Mansion on a stormy day. Overlooking Point Lobos, with dark clouds and wind blustering through the ancient pines and eucalyptus, the gray stone mansion could fuel a Gothic romance novelist's fires of inspiration all winter long.

Located at the end of Hatton Road in Carmel, the Flanders Mansion was built in the late '20s. Nearly covered with many years' growth of vines, the house is constucted of gray thermatite bricks that were made in the Tortilla Flats area of Carmel Woods.

On July 1, 1990 Carmel Heritage negotiated to lease the mansion from the city and Heritage members are embarking on an adventuresome plan to repair and restore it. The First Murphy project is currently headquartered at the house and the group's ultimate goal is to create an artist's co-op for Carmel art groups at the Flanders Mansion.

If you have information or memories about the Flanders Mansion that you would like to share with Carmel Heritage please call their office at 624-4447. Project Director Enid Sales can also tell you about the restoration goals for the mansion and fund-raising needs.

TASTE OF A TASTE

You'll be able to find a parking place on Cannery Row tonight. It's not the weekend yet. Join Marie Wilson and Bill Bates and celebrate the debut of their new cookbook, A Taste of Carmel at the Paul Masson Tasting Room at 700 Cannery Row from 6 to 8 o'clock. Carmel restaurateurs and chefs will be on hand to autograph their Bates portraits in A Taste of Carmel and refresh your memory with samples of the recipes featured in the book.

WISH UPON A STAR

If you're looking for the Alliance on Aging Christmas tree in Carmel Plaze it's the little one, close to Santa's place. The ornaments on the tree have wishes in them and for a modest donation you can bring the holiday joy of a friendly telephone visit, a lunch and good company for a week, or a ride to the doctor to an older person. An Alliance on Aging volunteer will be available to help you select a Christmas wish for a person the Alliance serves.

MARJORY LLOYD has been a champion of Carmel for many years. She relishes the memory of her favorite accomplishment for her town.

"IN the '60s when I was editor of The Pine Cone I waged a successful campaign against a proposal to put vapor lights on Ocean Avenue. I felt street lights should be unobtrusive and in keeping with the feeling of Carmel. The street lamps we have now are the result. Steven Grant, who was mayor at the time, agreed to my idea but later told me he had to put up twice as many lights than were planned for to accomplish his goal of illuminating downtown!"

"HELLO MOM? You know those thermals in the back of my underwear drawer? Could you overnight them to me? My new tiger-stripe desert cammies aren't warm enough."

Daily news reporter Kevin Howe and photographer Orville Myers were among the group of local press on an Army-sponsored trip to Saudi Arabia. Rumor is an aircraft malfunction en route forced a landing and stopover for the would-be desert rats in Massachusetts. In November. Brrrrr.

COLLECTOR'S FINE ARTS FESTIVAL

"The Nutcracker," a whimsical dream of Christmas, greeted Zantman Art Galleries clients and friends who attended last weekend's first "Collector's Fine Arts Festival" held at the Carmel gallery. Created especially for the festival by San Francisco artist Ralph Anderson, "The Nutcracker" was among a selection of original art by Zantman artists on display. Artists in attendance during the four-day festival included Ted Goerschner, Marilyn Simandle, Robert Watson, John West, Dorothy Fitzgerald, Jared Sines, Fred Brooks and Hu Chi Chung.

ROOM AT THE INN

Two local hotels are offering free rooms over the Christmas holiday to enable out-of-town relatives of hospital and nursing home patients to spend time with their loved ones.

The Sheraton Monterey's "Operation Goodheart" invites people who are traveling more than 50 miles to visit their relatives in local medical facilities to stay free at the Sheraton for up to three nights from Dec. 23 through Dec. 26. The offer does not include meals or incidentals. Reservations may be made with the Sheraton Monterey's Director of Public Relations Tia Gindick at 649-4234. People making reservations will be asked for the name and facility of the relative they are visiting.

The Doubletree Hotel will again provide free, short-term lodging to those in need during the holidays. People requiring emergency rooms or out-of-town families visiting relatives at Community Hospital will be accommodated. Referrals to the hotel are made by the United Way agencies, the Salvation Army, YWCA, Family Resource Center, Catholic Social Services, Red Cross and Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula.

The Meatloaf Theorem

AS AN outsider attempting to break through Carmel's Pine Tree Curtain, it's fascinating seeing how hard Carmelites work to maintain their city's uniqueness.

Sometimes though, change seems like it might not be such a bad idea. For instance, at the intersection of San Carlos and Sixth, where a bad car accident occured the other day, it might behoove the city to put up a four-way stop sign.

However this recommended change leads to the point of this article:

I have a theory...the harder people work to change their actions, the faster the newly changed behavior goes back to what it originally was. I call this the "Meatloaf Theorem."

My mother is a wonderful cook. However, she makes a lousy meatloaf. It's dry and tasteless. I grew up despising this heavy meat pie.

One day I was at my sister's house – another good cook – and she made meatloaf. Needless to say, I was extremely disappointed in her entree selection. But, her meatloaf was extraordinary! It bore no resemblance to that horror I was used to.

I got immediately on the horn.

My brother came by, ate some loaf and was ecstatic. The skies parted and the angels sang, "meatloaf is good."

The next step was getting Mother to exchange her recipe for my sister's. And by gosh, she did! Mom's meatloaf was now delicious, and our family was united in our love of the loaf.

Unfortunately, as my theory goes, Mom could not leave well enough alone. She secretly started adding the ingredients that made up her original meatloaf, which in her (and only her) opinion was so tasty.

End result, we have Mom's yucky meatloaf – again.

And here's the point:

I'm originally from Los Angeles and came here loving everything there was about Carmel, but now I find myself wanting to change things in this town to make it better.

Now four-way stop signs at some intersections, sound like it might not be a bad idea...might stop some of those nasty accidents we have periodically. But of course, following the "Meatloaf Theorem," stop signs lead to (gasp!) traffic lights. Traffic lights lead to mini-malls, 7-11's, Big Gulps, drive-thru Jack-in-the-Boxes, and perhaps the biggest bane of all – rap music.

Finally our dear little town will have become a teeming metropolis, and right next to Akbar's Pita Hut, you'll be able to find our newest establishment, Porn-by-the-Sea.

So in ending, let's leave Carmel as she is – even if it means some inconveniences. Let's not put the "Meatball Theorem" into practice.

(Tina-Marie Glatt is an editorial assistant with the Carmel Pine Cone and occasionally we let her out to smell the pine trees...but not to drive.)

St. Nicholas Day celebrated

The Santa Claus story began with the legendary life of a Spanish bishop, Nicholas of Myra.

For 1,700 years, the truths and fictions of St. Nicholas' life blended to form a heritage embraced by cultures the world over.

The Barnyard in Carmel will celebrate the Feast Day of St. Nicholas with a European-style Weihnachtsmarkt, "Hallowed Eve Market," on Sunday, Dec. 2.

Each year the merchants and restaurateurs set up tables of foods and Christmas items in the Barnyard gardens. All day, people browse among the wares, enjoying jugglers, musicians, clowns and carolers.

As dusk approaches, the crowd gathers around the Christmas tree standing in the open courtyard. Suddenly, with a flourish of trumpets, St. Nicholas arrives on a great white horse, accompanied by his servant, "Black Peter." He waves to the children, red robes and white beard flowing. He stops, raises his golden staff and as if by magic the tree bursts into color and the children's choir joins in song.

The Barnyard Weihnachtsmarkt is open from noon to dusk on Dec 2. The Barnyard is at Highway 1 and Carmel Valley Road, Carmel.

For more information, call 624-8886.

REGRETTABLE

Murder is an ugly word. It is heard much too frequently these days. When applied to individual rather than to mass cases, such as in war, it becomes uglier still. And there is a danger of using it prematurely, often mistakenly, in suspicious cases, when nothing is proved.

The strange case of Sade Latham which everyone is talking about right now, is a mystery story, certainly, but not necessarily a murder story. And to speak of it a a murder case is wrong, is shameful, indecent. It is an unjusifiable explanation of what was in all probability an unfortunate death due to natural causes.

COMING OF AGE

College Applications

IT'S THAT time of year again – the time when teenagers pause and take a reluctant peek at their futures, then sprint away from them as fast as they can, yelping like frightened puppies.

Some take refuge with their parents, actually asking for help with college applications. Others take one look and "just say no" to the whole procedure. But eventually they gather enough courage to start them. Beginning this fall and ending in late January, seniors will stress over applications. Nights become torture as frantic college hopefuls try to mail the thick packets of paper before due dates, guilty of waiting until the last possible microsecond before starting them.

The whole procedure is long, confusing, expensive, and tiresome. Almost every college or university has its own unique application, a handy-dandy packet of papers full of impersonal personal questions; listings of expectations and qualifications; vague essay questions; and other extraneous criteria that will be used to determine acceptances and rejections.

Because every application is different, and filling them out takes time, applying to college can be a time-consuming process. Most kids apply to at least two, if not more, colleges. At Carmel High, one of the more popular application choices is the University of California system. The instruction book that comes with the U.C. application is 40 pages long. The application itself is only eight pages in length.

The U.C. system allows an applicant to apply to all eight campuses of the system at once by designating the campuses where he or she wants to be considered for admission, paying $40 for each. After that, the application requests the usual information: name, address, Social Security number, as well as the unusual: place of birth, parents' income, language proficiency. In the middle of the application is a giant profile of the applicant's high school career and the grades he or she earned, as well as his or her standardized test scores. The student is asked to add up all of his points and determine his or her GPA at the bottom. On the last page, an applicant lists his or her activities, honors, awards, and jobs in three small boxes.

The last step is the essay, which can be the difference between admittance and denial for borderline students. This year's question was a mouthful: "The university is seeking information that will distinguish you from other applicants in terms of your goals, aspirations, experiences, and achievements...what is important to you...your main academic interest and your educational and career objectives. Please write about how your life experiences have influenced your intellectual and personal growth." The applicant is given two pages to answer this question.

And that is just one application. On the other hand, a private school application may be 22 pages long and include address labels, three teacher recommendation forms, an optional reference form, as well as the usual basic information requests, and up to eight essay questions.

One of Stanford University's essay questions is "if you could spend a day with anyone, real or fictional, with whom would it be, and how would you spend your time?" Stanford gives the applicant a page to answer this question. A private school application fee is about $55.

Most applications are due in late November or early December. After a student has completed the applications and sent them away, he or she must have their high school send the university an official copy of their transcript. This usually costs about $2 per application. Then the student has to wait until the college admission decisions are sent out in April. Assuming an acceptance arrives, he or she can stop worrying about getting in and start worrying about staying in.

College applications are worrisome. They take lots of time to complete, use up a lot of brain power that should be saved for math class or finishing yesterday's homework, and are generally a big headache. They also cost a lot. But once they are finished, the relief a student (and his family) feels is amazing.

The scary part is that as soon as that application is mailed, the student has given his or her future away. Their destiny is placed in the hands of an unknown admissions officer in some far-off desk who will make a decision that will affect the student forever after. And when the acceptances arrive, the student gets to worry about the next step: paying for colllege.

News notes:

U.S. Weather Service reveals much-awaited winter rain forecast

THE MUCH-awaited winter forecast from the U.S. Weather Service predicts above normal temperatures and near-normal rainfall between December and February for the Central Coast.

Weather officials say that there is only a 50-50 chance that the rainfall predictions will reach fruition.

The forecast, however, is the first upbeat note in several years. Last year's long-range forecast for the winter called for below-normal rainfall, which was painfully accurate.

The 30-day forecast for December, released Nov. 28, is calling for normal temperatures and "above the median" amounts of rainfall, according to Tony Barnston, meterologist with the U.S. Weather Service in Maryland.

Barnston said that an upper-level high pressure system that has reached from Alaska to California appears to be weakening.

He added that this change should occur sufficiently to allow rainfall sometime after Dec. 6.

City parking permits will be available Dec. 8, 12, and 15

THE CITY of Carmel-by-the-Sea will be issuing Resident Parking Permits to Carmel residents and residential property owners starting Dec. 8.

The permits, which are good for the calendar year 1991 will be issued at Sunset Center's Room 10 on the following dates:

– Saturday, Dec. 8, from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

– Wednesday, Dec. 12, from noon to 3 p.m.

– Saturday, Dec. 15, from 9:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m.

The permits authorize holders extended parking ONLY in the following time zones:

1. Two hours in parking spaces designated for one hour.
2. Sixty minutes in parking spaces designated for 30 minutes.
3. In residential areas designated preferential resident parking.
4. Parking on Scenic Road after sunset.

In order to receive a permit, you must meet the following criteria:

1. Be the registered owner of the vehicle.
2. Be a resident or own residential property within the city limits of Carmel.
3. Bring some type of proof indicating you are a resident or own residential property within the city limits.
4. Pay $4 for the permit.

After Jan. 2, 1991, permits will be available at the Carmel Police Department between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Hatton Canyon hikes led by Noel Mapsted

HIKES THROUGH the Hatton Canyon area will be led every Sunday until the end of the year by Carmel environmentalist Noel Mapsted.

Mapsted will discuss the natural diversity of the canyon, including the native Monterey pine stands, wetlands and habitat of Hickman's onion. The walk will entail the entire proposed Hatton Canyon Freeway route.

Participants should meet at 11 a.m. behind the Bank of America on Rio Road (next to Baker's Square restaurant), to carpool to Carpenter Street where the hike will start.

The hike goes one-way down Hatton Canyon, all downhill for about 2.5 miles. Hikers should wear boots or sturdy shoes and bring a bag lunch. The hike, which should be over by 2 p.m., will take place rain or shine.

The hikes are free and sponsored by the Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club.

Dates for the hikes are: Dec. 2, 9, 16, 23, and 30.

For more information call Mapsted at 624-3263.

CARMEL... AS I SEE IT

By Betty Barron

The ways of welcome

WAYS OF saying "welcome" in Carmel and other places:

Leave the gate open.

Or, leave the door open.

Or, hang out a flag.

Whatever you do...do something to say..."Hello! I'm here. Come in!"

In Carmel there are many ways in which shops say "welcome."

The French Connection displays the tricolor, a bright signal fluttering in the breeze, which catches the eye of passersby. Zantman Galleries and Cottage Galleries hang out blue and white "Show Today" flags.

Jack London's not only leaves the door open most of the time, but offers the weary pedestrian just wandering by a comfortable bench nearby to rest and enjoy the sun and scenery.

The Cobblestone Inn leaves the patio gate open and the driveway gate, too. The inn's window facade tempts strollers to peak into the dining room, over the heads of a family of stuffed toy bears, with a cozy fireplace and an inviting buffet lining the wall.

The China Art Center softens its high impressive white-faced Spanish front and arched doorway with a double gate of warm wood and a graceful tree, another tree framing the roof line.

But, perhaps the warmest of all welcomes is presented by the City of Carmel itself...the handsome stone arch at the intersection of San Carlos and Ocean Avenue. The bell hainging high up in the arch does not ring a welcome, but the spirit is there, and visitors often pause to read the inscription at the base.

Saying "welcome" in Hungarian is not too different. The famed art colony of Szentendre near Budapest says it very well indeed. I found this to be true on my Istanbul to Oslo tour this past October.

In Szentendre broad streets (some barred to cars), weave along a hillside that in places requires steps to traverse. I wandered at will from spectacular sculpture galleries to shops showing watercolors and oils, and tiny shops selling souvenirs, puppets, dolls in traditional Hungarian dress, postcards, slides and delectables for munching as you stroll.

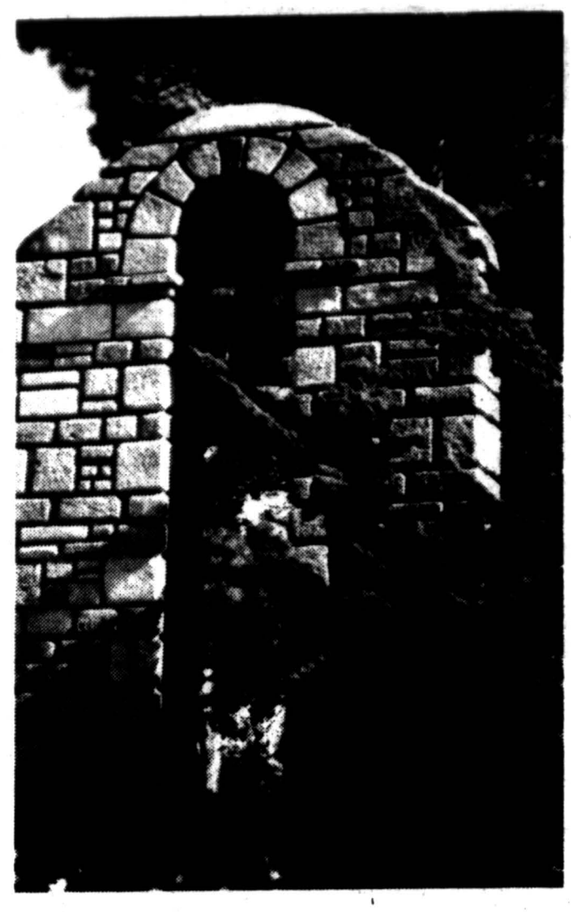
You are never far from the Danube or the lovely rolling hills with grapevines glowing in the warm sunshine...all very similar to the land around Carmel...our beautiful bay a worthy substitute to the river.

Back to the Danube. It seemed even more like home as I approached our cruise boat, the Donaustar. Moored next to us, actually moored to us, was the Stanford Danube College cruise ship. I could step from my boat right onto the deck of the Stanford boat to chat with the students and share their experiences.

The door was always open.

Yes, the doors are open all over the Balkans...even in remote Romania. Bucharest is bustling, the long avenue up to the palace that Nicolae Ceausescu was building before his execution is now open to all Romanians. (No one was allowed to walk there before.) And the "palace" is now re-named "The House of the People."

The building cranes are up in East Berlin and The Wall is now just a winding footpath. Smiling musicians play in the parks under big, bright umbrellas with "West" painted in bold letters. This is one way of saying that the door is open..."Welcome."



CARMEL'S MEMORIAL Arch attracts visitors.

What we take for granted is a prized possession in these cities.

Let's keep our doors open.

THOSE IN NEED FIND "ROOM AT THE INN" THIS HOLIDAY SEASON AT THE DOUBLETREE HOTEL

There will be "Room at the Inn" when the Doubletree Hotel in Monterey again provides free, short-term lodging accommodations to those in need during this holiday season.

As in past years, the hotel plans to meet the growing neeed in the community for emergency accommodations, a need most acutely felt during the holidays by the less fortunate.

"Room at the Inn" will provide free accommodations to those requiring emergency rooms when there are no alternatives available or for out-of-town families visiting relatives at the Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula who need housing. Referrals to the hotel are made by the United Way agencies, the Salvation Army, YWCA, Family Resource Center, Catholic Social Services, Red Cross and Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula.

"In the spirit of giving, the Doubletree Hotel is reaching out to help the less fortunate during this special time of year," said Dan Brown, director of marketing. "We want to bring some light and warmth into the lives of these people who, for whatever reason, find themselves in unfortunate circumstances."

Doubletree Hotels began "Room at the Inn" a few years ago, discovering an ever-increasing need for the community service and has upped the scope of the program each year to fill that need. Doubletree has now established the program as an annual holiday tradition that will be presented as a gift to all the communities where the upscale hotels are located.

For more information call: Family Resource Center, Barry Sawyer, 394-4622; YWCA, Ute Bender, 649-0834; The Salvation Army, Glorietta Rowland, 899-4911; Catholic Social Services, Ed Rauber, executive director, 394-4656; Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula, Cynthia Peck, 624-5311.

PARK BOARD TO DISCUSS WILDLAND PROJECTS

At a public hearing to be held during its regular board meeting, Monday Dec. 3, directors of the Monterey Peninsula Regional Park District will consider wildland acquisition projects in the Santa Lucia Mountains portion of the park district, an area covering the mountainous terrain from Highway 68 southward to Big Sur. The meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at Seaside City Hall. The public is invited to attend and submit suggestions for wildlife habitat projects.

With the passage last June of Proposition 117, the California Wildlife Protection Initiative, the park district qualified to receive up to $1.5 million a year for the next 30 years to purchase and protect wildlife habitat in the Santa Lucia Mountains. The Prop 117 legislation specifies that habitat protection projects include deer and mountain lion ranges, rare and endangered species, wetlands, streams or riparian (streamside) vegetation. Limited funds are also available for restoration of wetlands, streams and riparian areas.

Funds for Prop 117 projects come primarily from unallocated portions of the statewide tobacco tax. No new taxes finance the program.

On Dec. 3, the park board will hear descriptions of potential wildlife habitat acquisition projects, including additions to Garland Ranch Regional Park in Carmel Valley and cooperative projects with the State Department of Parks and Recreation in northern Big Sur. The first statewide purchase of land with funds from Prop 117 was completed here in Monterey County when 179 acres of prime wildlife habitat were added to Garland Park. The property was purchased last September from the Tim Condon family for $150,000.

Criteria considered in evaluating potential projects include an assessment of resource significance and threat of loss. Cooperative funding with other agencies will be regarded favorably. The level of public support of the project, special management contstraints and

Capture the Magic of Christmas at the Barnyard's "Weihnachtsmarkt" Fair

Every year on December 2nd, The Barnyard is transformed into a European-style village fair—a "Weihnachtsmarkt"—in celebration of the arrival of St. Nicholas. Here, the beautiful gardens of The Barnyard are turned into a Christmas fairyland filled with flaming red poinsettias, holly wreaths and twinkling lights.

Shop owners show their finest wares on outdoor tables as the aroma of holiday foods fills the air and clowns, jugglers, storytellers, musicians and strolling carolers entertain you.

Then as dusk descends, the blare of flugelhorns and the angelic voices of a children's choir announces the arrival of St. Nicholas who enters on a great white horse led by Black Peter. With his golden staff he lights the magnificent tree and then gives every child a special treat.

Join us with your family for this memorable holiday tradition from noon to dusk Sunday, December 2nd at The Barnyard. And every weekend in December enjoy live music in our gardens.

COMMUNITY REMEMBERS AND HONORS LOVED ONES WITH FIFTH ANNUAL HOSPICE TREE OF LIFE

The fifth annual Hospice of the Central Coast Tree of Life lighting ceremony, in which members of the community honor or remember loved ones and friends, will be Dec. 3 at 6 p.m. at Portola Plaza in downtown Monterey.

Beginning at 5:30 p.m., the Victory Temple Choir from Seaside will perform, followed by the 30-minute welcoming ceremony. The event culminates in the lighting of the Tree of Life when 7-year-old Cynthia Vindiola of Pacific Grove turns on thousands of white lights which form a tree atop the Sheraton Monterey Hotel.

A former Hospice patient, Cynthia was diagnosed three years ago with an inoperable brain tumor. She underwent months of hospitalization and intensive chemotherapy and radiation. Later she received skilled nursing from Hospice and the Visiting Nurse Association at home, as well as therapies to relearn such things as how to walk and talk. Since 1988, Cynthia has been in remission.

"The Ceremony celebrates life and the gift of hospice care in our community," said Judith Herrmann, president of Hospice.

Each light on the Tree of Life is designated in memory or in honor of someone by a donor of $15 or more to Hospice which is received during the holiday season. The Tree will shine each evening through December.

"Designating a light for someone is a unique and thoughtful way to remember them at holiday time," said Herrmann. "At the same time, the gift supports Hospice's patient care program. It offers a special opportunity to participate in this vital community resource."

For more information on the Tree of Life, call 372-6565.

A nonprofit organization, Hospice offers a total support system and health care program in the home for patients who have a life-threatening illness and their families. Its Resource Center in downtown Monterey offers information and referrals, support groups, and volunteer services. An inpatient care center in Carmel Valley, one of only about 40 nationwide, is also available when intensive nursing support is needed.

The ceremony will be held during a joint American Cancer Society and American Tin Cannery Chamber of Commerce mixer from 5 to 7 p.m.

Sponsored each year by the Monterey-San Benito unit of the American Cancer Society, the Remembrance Tree fund-raiser provides individuals and businesses the opportunity to remember or honor someone special through a donation to the American Cancer Society. All gifts will be acknowledged by special cards to the honoree or family as well as the donor.

A Remembrance Book will be on display throughout the holiday season with the names of donors and of those remembered.

For additional information on donations or the ceremony contact Pat Sandstrum, the society's development director, at 372-4521.

TASK FORCE TO STUDY SKATEBOARDING NEEDS MEMBERS

At the regular meeting of the Carmel-by-the-Sea Recreation Commission on Nov. 8, commissioners voted unanimously to form a task force to study if there is sufficient need to warrant a local skateboard facility, and if so, determine a suitable location and appropriate way to manage, finance and operate any such facility.

The issue was first brought to the attention of commissioners at their regular meeting in September by a group of concerned skaters who asked the commission about the possibility of building a safe, legal place for them to participate in their sport. The commission directed Acting Recreation Director Jerry Pullen to complete a preliminary study to determine if such facilities do exist and how they are operated.

In his report to commissioners Nov. 8, Pullen provided summary information on skateboard facilities in Oregon and California. The report indicated there appears to be three viable options for skateboard facilities: 1) city owned/operated, 2) city owned/vendor operated and 3) privately owned/operated. However, Pullen told commissioners a variety of issues must be studied when considering whether or not a skateboard facility should be built. These include need, liability, location, cost, use, safety, etc.

After receiving Pullen's report and public comment the commission voted unanimously to form a skateboard task force, headed by Pullen. Task force membership will consist of individuals from all sections of the community; youth, youth advocates, parents, business and civic leaders, residents, school district, and city staff.

Anyone interested in serving on the Carmel-by-the-Sea Recreation Skateboard Task Force is urged to contact Pullen at 626-1255.

Meals on Wheels needs volunteers

Drivers and other volunteers are needed to deliver 200 meals daily to shut-ins and the handicapped on the peninsula for Meals on Wheels.

According to Chuck Poland, a Carmel volunteer, 200 homes are served with three meals five days a week from Carmel Valley to Marina, but 22 volunteer drivers are needed daily to deliver those meals.

"We were seven drivers short the other day," said Poland, who has been pressed into service so often that he's driving almost daily now. "It means a lot to these people. You thank your lucky stars when you leave."

Poland said there are 22 routes, three of them in the Carmel area. One route usually takes from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. (including driving to and from the pick-up point in Pacific Grove).

Almost all of the help is from volunteers, Poland said, so often the agency ends up shorthanded. If you would like to volunteer to help out, contact Meals on Wheels at 375-4454.

Meals on Wheels is a nonprofit organization.

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

On speechmaking

From the Dec. 2, 1982 Carmel Pine Cone

One of the modern Chinese writers, Lu Xum, was a sort of Chinese version of our H.L. Mencken. He fought until his death in 1936 for intellectual freedom and artistic integrity. It is very strange that the Red Chinese should call on his words when they began a new purge among intellectuals and artists.

Lu Xum wrote: "Although bedbugs are unpleasant when they suck your blood they do it without a word, which is quite frank and straightforward. Mosquitos are quite different. Before biting they insist on making a long speech expounding the reasons which justify them for feeding on human blood.

Like Lu Xum, we prefer the more straightforward bedbugs to the communist mosquitos and our tax-imposing legislators. Lu Xum contended that the war lords and privates proceeded with their bloodsucking without feeling the necessity to justify it by long rationalizing orations.

Thomas Jefferson said that speeches measured by the hour die by the hour. But speech-making tax collectors and bloodsuckers never die, do they? And they neve shut up. Amen.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

Research suggests that people who climb high on the corporate ladder need to prepare for retirement from running a big show. Henry Kates, chief executive of an insurance company, noted that five senior managers died shortly after they retired. He was present when a sixth collapsed and died while making his farewell speech to 300 colleagues. As a result, Kates helped to fund research at the University of Colorado into the psychological impact of retirement on high-level executives. And he initiated a program called "Second Start" in his company. The program brings some retired executives back to special jobs that serve important purposes, but carry less pressure. The non-permanent positions let executives turn on their skills again, and give them a second chance to make a transition to satisfying activity.

Arthur Lang, 112 years old, had never voted in an election because he didn't get around to registering until this year. What took so long? "My mind was on making a living," said Lang, who formerly operated a barbeque eatery in Chicago. "I'm what you call a workaholic and I just devoted all my time to business."

ARTS & LEISURE

Spalding Invitational to return to peninsula courses

THERE IS NO other tournament in the golf world quite like the $300,000 Spalding Invitational Pro-Am which returns to the Monterey Peninsula Dec. 13-16 after a one year hiatus in the Arizona desert.

The Spalding is the only tournament in golf history to pair men and women in head-to-head competition for equal prize money, with the women being given a distance advantage off the tees at Pebble Beach, Spyglass Hill and Poppy Hills.l

In keeping with a tradition begun in 1979 by tournament founder and director Harold Firstman, fresh names from the LPGA Tour are brought in each year to try their luck against the men and long odds.

This time around three women will make their Spalding debuts. They are Deb Richard, No. 15 on the LPGA money list with earnings of $186,464 this year; Elaine Crosby, the 1989 Mazda-Japan Classic winner who is No. 18 on this year's list with $169,543; and Cathy Johnston, No. 21 with $156,240. In addition Cathy won one of the four LPGA majors this year when she captured the Du Maurier Classic in Canada.

Returning to the Spalding after a new addition to the family will be Jil Inkster, the Northern California star who has made several appearances in the tournament since women were first added to the field in 1979. Also expected to enter is one of the original women from that field, Sally Little, winner of 15 LPGA Tour titles, including three majors.

Because there are usually only six women in the field of 90 pros, the odds are indeed stacked against them. The highest finish by a woman came in the 1987 Spalding on the peninsula when Patty Sheehan and Jan Stephenson tied for fourth, Stephenson came back in 1988 to tie for fifth, missing getting into what would have been a 5-way sudden death playoff by the inch her final putt missed.

Last year Colleen Walker, winner of this year's Tucson tour stop, tied for eighth after being the first round leader with a 65. Cindy Rarick, No.

THE THUNDERBIRD Bookshop will host a booksigning for A Taste of Carmel by Marie Wilson and Bill Bates. Several Carmel chefs will offer samples of their recipes featured in the book. The reception is set 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Monday, Dec. 3 at the shop located in the Barnyard, Carmel. (Craig Lovell photo)

'A Taste of Carmel' a recipe-filled effort

MARIE WILSON, publisher of Buying the Best, and Bill Bates, best known for his cartoons of Carmel and his Royal Viking Line sketchbook, have compiled recipes from Carmel's top chefs to create A Taste of Carmel. Approximately five chefs will join Wilson and Bates to offer samples of their culinary expertise during a booksigning set 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. on Monday, Dec. 3 at the Thunderbird Bookshop.

Seventeen chefs contributed their recipes from the kitchen of Carmel's favorite restaurants. From appetizers, soups, main entrees to desserts, in many cases a complete menu has been created by a chef for this book.

Included are Chicken Jerusalem by Jai Lal from Anton & Michel; Clam Foil Yaki prepared by Robata Grill's Peter Oda; Peach and Almond Pie by The Covey at Quail Lodge's Bob Williamson; and Dungeness Crab Appetizer from Brian Whitmer of the Pacific's Edge at the Highlands Inn.

While sampling an appetizer at the Carmel Business Association's annual "Taste of Carmel" event, Marie Wilson decided she had to have the recipe. That was the inspiration for this book. Wilson compiled the text and Bill Bates complimented the publication with his rarely seen, fine-art portraits of each chef.

Bates is a local cartoonist with an artistic gift that captures the ambiance of Carmel – the lifestyle, the local attitude toward the tourist trade and the environment.

His cartoon series, "Serra's Place," first appeared in the Carmel Pine Cone and was later carried by other local newspapers and magazines. The cartoons were also published in three books, Serra's Place, Serra's Place II and Bill Bates in Carmel. He was the creater of the comic strip "Ping." His portraiture is represented in many collections including the portfolio of the classic comedians called "The Funny Men," and in the lithographs series "The Golf Greats."

Wilson is the editor and co-publisher of Buying the Best, a publication she started in Perth, Australia, and continues to be a local success. Her articles and photographs have appeared in magazines in the United States and abroad. She is a world traveler and while living in Fiji, she wrote for Travelage West and Pacific Islands Monthly.

The Thunderbird is located in The Barnyard off Highway 1 and Carmel Valley Road. For more information call 624-1803.

Reptilian resiliency

SO TWO FAME-HUNGRY hunks didn't sing at all on their vocal album that sold in the millions and won a Grammy. The electronic scam was admitted by German producer Frank Farian after pressure from rumors pushed him to the wall.

In fact, Farian fired this pair – Rob Pilatus and Fab Morvan of Milli Vanilli – because they thought about vocalizing for a planned second package. The nerve. When all they had to do was lip-sync their way through concerts and video footage.

Frank's reptilian resiliency can't be what makes the industry go round and round – can it? He reports that he'll enter the studio with the actual and previously anonymous singers. As a target, he's too easy. Check out the reaction of Arista Records veep Roy Lott: "Seven million albums? Embarrassing? I don't say the end justifies the means, but we marketed seven million albums."

The buyers were very young. They believed Milli Vanilli had some truth about how they felt or wanted to feel in future. Fairly mesmerized by electrified gimmickry, those kids nevertheless know real hope and pain just like thee and me. And now they know more about broken trust-lines, resultant anger, adults who lie.

How fine it'd be if local children violated by commerce could fill Seaside's Oldemeyer Center on Saturday night (12/1). That's when Monterey Bay Blues Festival will present the Johnny Heartsman Revue with singers Takezo and Arbess Williams. The real stuff heals and such children might well know so (in fact if not the words) before first set's end.

Johnny's a Sacramento pro who performs beautifully on flute as well as keyboards. Berkeley resident Takezo's pleasantly gruff approach transcends the novelty factor – young Japanese man delivering Down Home lyrics.

Miss Williams may be called a physician of the human soul. A Sacramento Valley barber for more than two decades, she was magnetic and inspirational during the last Monterey Bay Blues Festival: gospel commitment plus classic blues grooves that couldn't be more honest. The lady's integrity honors the art form and her own upbringing.

The occasion offers door prizes and food (always good at these Blues Fest fund-raisers). Tickets cost $14 per at the door or $12 advance – Royal Barber Shop, Durley Electronics, Dorothy's House of Beauty, Portofino Coffee House in Pacific Grove Plaza.

And. Dave McKenna's the kind of jazz pianist whom other keyboard adepts go to hear whenever he hits any town. His integrity will be showcased Friday night (11/30) in the current series of Hidden Valley Music Seminars. Kickoff time – eight o'clock. Ducats ($10 apiece) through Center Stage Ticketing or at the door.

McKenna hails from Boston. His many albums for Concord Records make critics seek out praise-packed phrases. Let's keep it simple: he's among the very best and should not be bypassed. (Last Sunday, he played Berkeley's Maybeck Recital Hall and was taped there as part of Concord's excellent solo piano series.) Hidden Valley info: 659-3115.

ALREADY: Monterey Jazz Festival honcho Jimmy Lyons has begun putting out feelers to obtain specific bands and vocalists for next year's edition. Naming names at this point would be grossly unfair. If the man gets two-thirds of what he wants, it'll still be a knockout lineup – and his 30-year batting average comes off better than that.

Jimmy said during our chat that Myron Etienne Jr. was elected new MJF board president at the last meeting (11/13). Etienne has been on the panel since 1959 and takes the reins from Howard Bucquet.

The MJF Education Committee goes to press shortly with its brand new newsletter. Stella LePine (education coordinator) has been rounding up the copy and estimates from various printers.

At the last fest, photographer Will Wallace and I were breaking bread with some of the KUSP-FM remote crew – Larry Blood, Peter Fallico, Leon Allen. Out of nowhere, Pete challenged: "Let's try and list all the jazz players named Sonny." The obvious ones were blurted – and then some real digging in memory banks began.

Pete sends along this alphabetized roster of Sonnys: Berman, Blount, Clark, Clay, Cohn, Criss, Dallas, Dunham, Fortune, Greer, Igoe, Phillips, Redd, Rollins, Sharrock, Simmons, Stitt, White. Do you have any additions?

SIGHTBITES: Kuumbwa Jazz Center of Santa Cruz booked Andy Narell's band for Monday night (12/3). The steel drum player's a masterful improviser. Shows at 7:30 and 9:30; $12 per; Center Stage Ticketing. On Friday night (11/30) Orquesta Gitano will play a salsa dance/concert. Tickets – $5 each and available at the door only.

Roger Eddy's unit will occupy the Monterey Bay Club stage on Saturday night (12/1). Otherwise: televised football (12/2-3), Jack and Ed Show (12/4), Alan Berman (12/5). The powerful Chris Cain Band too (12/7-8).

Monterey Brewing Company continues its Sunday afternoon blues jams (3-8). Good players show up.

Hartnell College Big Band plans a no-cost jazz concert on Friday evening (11/30). Dr. Carl Christensen directs. Main stage with an eight o'clock start.

Musician and producer Nick Williams announces a Third Thursday Jazz Series in December and throughout next year at the Vista Lobos Room of Carmel's Vista Lobos Park. Nick says the free events will feature pro instrumentalists, vocalists, gifted students. Call him for lineups and reservations: 626-9151.

Recommended night sounds – Bill LePine Quartet with reedman John Cortes at Monterey Beach Hotel (Wednesdays through Saturdays), Bill Allison and jazz pals at Pablo's in The Barnyard (Wednesdays), Monterey Peninsula Jazz Orchestra at Mission Ranch Barn (Mondays), bassist Norm Ross hosting jam sessions at The Firehouse in downtown Monterey (Thursdays and Saturdays), Monica Harle Trio at Highlands Inn (Fridays and Saturdays), Ace Hill's soulful piano plus bassist at Doubletree Lounge (Thursdays through Saturdays), Brazilian percussionist Helcio Milito and pianist Weber Drummond at Spanish Bay Lobby Lounge (Wednesdays through Sundays), Holehouse Blues Band at Cancun in The Crossroads (Wednesday).

Vocalist Scotty Wright and his quartet close out that jazz series at Giovanni's in Concord on Saturday evening (12/1).

House of Flowers (fetching musical by Harold Arlen and Truman Capote) will have a revival early next year. Patti LaBelle says she'll open in the show come February. No site reported as yet. Geoffrey Holder signed on as director and costume designer.

Yoshi's of Oakland has the McCoy Tyner Trio coming in (12/4-8). With brilliant bassist Avery Sharpe and Aaron Scott on drums.

Scarecrow Press lists many fascinating jazz titles via its new catalogue. Call toll free: 1-800-537-7107.

Next time – special plans being made for Montreaux Jazz Festival's 25th anniversary in July 1991.

Wonderful woods

"THE WONDERFUL Woods of Robert Agnew" is the theme of an exhibit opening Saturday, Dec. 1 at the Sculpture House and Gardens on Highway 1 in Carmel Highlands. Technical excellence, lyrical curves and lines distinguish Agnew's compositions in cured wood. He works chiefly in avocado and walnut. For exhibit details, call 624-2476.

CRITIC AT LARGE

By Mac McDonald

Just a little bent

EVERY SO often when the sun and moon and stars are aligned just so, the crazies come out to party. Such is the case in the coming week when the 8th Annual Pelican Bent-a-Fit Ball makes its annual appearance.

Call it a kind of strange harmonic convergence if you will, but organizer Jerry Ford (no, for the hundreth time, not that Jerry Ford), comes up with the wierdest and most unlikely assemblages of musicians, comedians and "performance artists" (for lack of a better term), for this yearly get-together, set for 8 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 6 at The Club of Monterey.

Started as a benefit several years ago to help defray costs of rehabilitating pelicans who had their beaks cut off by some sadistic morons, the event has taken on a kind of offbeat life of its own. Led by Ford and his "band" Bent, the benefit has become a true it-can-only-happen-here event. Taken as a performance piece as a whole, it's brilliant in a kind of sloppy, endearing, slap-happy way.

Virtually anyone can (and they have), come up to the front of the stage and grab the mike for some impromptu speechifying, or singing or whatever. The Pelican Queen is selected (by applause, please), by the best poem about pelicans candidates can come up with. And if you're male and want to become Pelican Queen, better grab a buddy, because it takes two men to make a queen. (There's a line in there somewhere, but I'm not going to touch it.)

This year's musical interludes will include former Frank Zappa cohorts (former Mothers of Invention, that is), Don Preston and Bunk Gardner (with the Don Preston Jazz Quartet – they play "heavy metal jazz"); former Cowsills member trying to break out of typecasting, Barry Cowsill; local rockers Bombay (led by guitarist-vocalist Dale Kurokawa of Jet and Medflys fame); Rhino Boy and Jane Sentner; blues band Strange Brew; the Michael Kainer Band, Josh Mars and comedian Shawn Mello, as well as some surprise guests, undoubtedly.

The event, co-sponsored by KMBY, KCAH, The Club and Bent Music, is a benefit for the SPCA of Monterey County and tickets are only $6 in advance (at Recycled Records in New Monterey), $7 at the door. It's an annual event I try not to miss, because anything goes and often does. If you want info you can give Jerry a ring at 663-5561, but it may be futile because he probably doesn't know what's going to happen that night either. Enjoy.

How DO they do it?

Doc Ricketts that is. The tiny club is stilling pulling, if not exactly household names, top-drawer music acts into the area. Upcoming in December: the Forbidden Pigs on Dec. 4, Charlie Musselwhite Dec. 3 and Little Charlie and the Nightcats (with the Chris Cain Band opening), Dec. 11.

The Pigs ripped up the joint during their last appearance at the Cannery Row club in September with its frantic blend of blues, rockabilly and Tex-Mex. The group is currently working on the follow-up to their debut album on Swingin' Records and are receiving national airplay on college and public radio with their hit Uno Mas Cerveza.

Musselwhite, once considered almost a journeyman blues harp player, has reached near-legendary status in the blues world for his work of recent years, which has included recording with Australian rockers INXS, Mick Jagger and John Lee Hooker. His latest album, his first on the prestigious Alligator blues label, Ace of Harps may be his best yet in a long and distinguished career. Songs such as Hello Pretty Baby, The Blues Overtook Me and Mean Ol' Frisco burn with renewed energy and passion.

Musselwhite's show will be "opened" by the critical match-up between two 10-1 teams, San Francisco 49ers and the New York Giants on ABC-TV's Monday Night Football. Maybe Charlie will play Mean Ol' Frisco for the assembled 49er faithful.

Yet another Alligator group, Little Charlie and the Nightcats blow into town Tuesday, Dec. 11 with their upbeat brand of jump blues. Little Charlie is the guitarist, and he plays in so many styles – from country to blues and jazz – that it'll make your head spin. The group, which hails from Sacramento, has three albums out on the Alligator label, which incidentally, if you're not aware of it, is a blues lover's dream come true.

The label pumps out three or four high-quality blues albums a month, complete with informative and extensive liner notes and player and song identifications (many cheapo labels, unlike Alligator, don't even tell you who the songwriters or back-up players are). You can even write to them for a free catalog, which includes the likes of Albert Collins, Elvin Bishop, Katie Webster, Johnny Copeland, Lucky Peterson, Kinsey Report, The Paladins, James Cotton, Kenny Neal, Lazy Lester, Clarence "Gatemouth" Brown etc. etc. Drop 'em a line at PO Box 60234, Chicago, Ill. 60660. (Appropriate location.)

SPEAKING OF the blues, check out the Johnny Heartsman Revue this weekend at the Oldemeyey Center in Seaside.

Bay Area bluesman Heartsman is bringing in Monterey Bay Blues Festival sensations R. Bess Williams and Takezo with him to round out his band for the 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. show Saturday, Dec. 1 at the center, 986 Hilby Ave. Heartsman also played the 1990 blues fest, but was upstaged by vocalists Williams and Takezo, a Japanese blues singer who wails like there's no tomorrow.

Tickets are $12 in advance, $14 at the door and are available Royal Barber Shop, Dorothy's House of Beauty, Durley Electric in Seaside and Grove Auto Parts and Portofino Cafe in Pacific Grove. Proceeds benefit the sixth annual Monterey Bay Blues Festival. Info's at 394-8304.

Give extra bags to Goodwill

In Salinas, the test is offered 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesdays at the Health Department, 1270 Natividad Road. For an appointment, call 755-4512.

Spalding Invitational Pro-Am scheduled Dec. 13-16

10 on this year's money list, tied for 10th with Mark Lye.

The two big-name players from the current LPGA Tour had an interesting conversation about The Spalding in view of the long odds against them.

"You have to look at The Spalding as just a fun thing," said Walker.

"They set it up pretty fair for us," said Rarick, "but I think the determining factor is who is the most creative around the greens. I really enjoy the tournament. I was nervous going in, but I had fun. It's nice the girls have a chance to win, but I'd like to see more women in the field."

"I feel the same," added Walker. "We know coming in the odds aren't good, so you just expect it."

Rarick then compared the women to the men from 100 yards in, saying, "I don't think we are better, but we can hold our own."

"I think the men may know a few more shots than we do," said Walker.

Added Rarick, "I was paired with Miller Barber in the team golf and he had so many shots you wouldn't believe it. The seniors have gotten so much more creative. I think the men are a little more agressive around the greens while we might take the safe way out."

Why?

"We're females, what else?" concluded Walker.

Speaking of adding additional women to the field, Firstman said, "For this year's tournament we intended to do that. In fact, we extended 15 invitations, but due to our change in dates to the middle of December, it led to schedule conflicts for the women this year. We will continue to attempt to expand the women's field in the future."

Speaking of those senior men, veteran star Billy Casper is in the field for this year's Spalding. All Casper has done over the years is win 51 times, including two U.S. Opens and a Masters. Other former Open winners in the field include Johnny Miller and Andy North.

With entries still coming in, another strong field of both men and women players will be on hand for the 19th annual Spalding Pro-Am which will begin wth a Thursday-Friday-Saturday rotation over Pebble Beach, Spyglass Hill and Poppy Hills and conclude with a Sunday finale back at Pebble Beach, the world-famous links which is being prepared by Jack Nicklaus to host its third U.S. Open in 1992.

Once again, the Monterey Kiwanis Club will be the charity beneficiary of the Spalding, which turns proceeds from gallery ticket sales over to the organization for use in youth-oriented programs.

Advance sale gallery tickets will be available in most Northern California golf course pro shops.

Season tickets are priced at $40 and include the Tuesday-Wednesday practice rounds at the three courses as well as the four days of the tournament proper. Individual daily tickets are priced at $15 for the Thursday-Friday rounds and $20 each for the Saturday and Sunday rounds.

Additional information is available by calling the Spalding's toll free number at 1-800-347-6126 or by writing the Spalding at P.O. Box M, Carmel 93921.

THE MULTI-talented Tandy Beal will offer an "Informance" as part of the Festival of Trees. It begins at 1:30 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 2 in the Fairgrounds, Monterey. Admission to the festival is $3.

Tandy Beal graces Festival of Trees with an 'Informance'

TANDY BEAL, dancer, choreographer, actress, clown and director of Tandy Beal and Company, will offer an "Informance," a lively blend of dances, improvisations and stories of life of an artist at 1:30 p.m. on Sunday, Dec. 2 at the Monterey Fairgrounds and Exposition Park.

As a solo artist, she has performed in New York, Paris, London, Tokyo, Zurich, Copenhagen, Athens, Belgrade and Hong Kong. The U.S. State Department singled out the company as having some of the best American talent. In 1989, the USIA, through its Arts America program sponsored a tour to eastern and southern Europe.

"I think many people are worried that they don't understand art," Beal commented. "That's one of my whole pitches in the Informance, to make people realize that it's part of their own legacy to be able to speak in poetry..."

Beal's achievements include Isadore Duncan Awards for Innovation and Visual Design from Dance/Bay area; Artist of Year Award by Santa Cruz Arts Commission; Emerging Dance Artist of the Year (1983) by American Council for the Arts, and the California legislature has twice given her special awards.

Tandy Beal has created more than 70 dance and theater works. Her choreography is noted for its elegance and ability to communicate.

Tandy Beal and Company will appear at the Performing Arts Center on the campus of Santa Catalina School March 1 and 2, 1991.

The Festival of Trees opens Nov. 29 and continues through Dec. 2, culminating with the "Informance" and live auction of the Miniatures '90. Admission is $3 per adult. All proceeds benefit the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art.

Bronson, a graduate of Yale University's School of Music, is a former faculty member of California State University and Hartnell College. He and his wife are local teachers whose students have distinguished themselves in competitive auditions and in recital.

His recital at MPC is a Romantic program consisting of Chopin's Military Polonaise, Four Waltzes, Op. 69, Two Nocturnes, Op 27 and the Ballade No. 3 in A-flat Major. June Singer book provides discussion topic

A new book, Seeing Through the Visible World, by Jungian analyst June Singer, will be the topic of an open discussion sponsored by the Monterey Peninsula Friends of C.G. Jung. It begins at 7 p.m. on Friday, Nov. 30 at All Saints' Church, Ninth and Dolores, Carmel. Singer will not be at the discussion as planned, but she promises to visit the Friends of Jung next year.

The author uses the experiences of two women who came to understand their own invisible worlds in quite different ways to dramatically illustrate her point: living exclusively in either the objective, external visible world or the subjective, personal invisible world robs us of full appreciation and reverence for the sacredness of our lives. Singer explores the dreams and fantasies of her two subjects and weaves them together with literary, religious and philosophical concepts to illuminate the universal tapestry of the invisible world.

Singer writes, "...it is not necessary to go on a pilgrimage to find a sacred place wherever one is, ...(finding it within) involves clearing away the overwhelming trash and debris of self-imposed concerns, petty resentments and angers, the need to prove oneself right, mean competitiveness, little lies, taking advantage of people who are weaker and more defenseless, piling up money for its own sake, and all the other aids devised to pull up the ego."

All are invited to the discussion; donations, which allow this series to continue, will be gratefully accepted. There will be an opportunity to share experiences in both worlds.

The Friends of C.G. Jung is an informal group of people who are sharing in the exploration and application of the germinal ideas of the noted Swiss physician. For further details call or write 649-8809; 899 Drake Ave., Monterey, CA 93940.

Weston Gallery mounts John Sexton photo retrospective

CARMEL VALLEY photographer John Sexton will be paid tribute by the Weston Gallery. The exhibit is now open and continues through Jan. 1. A reception for Sexton is set 3 to 5 pm. Saturday, Dec. 15. The Weston Gallery is on Sixth Avenue between Dolores and Lincoln in Carmel-by-the-Sea.

This exhibition will cover the period of time from his beginnings in fine art photography in 1973 through Sexton's most recent work to date. John Sexton is a master photographer, printer and instructor. Known for his finely printed black and white landscapes, as well as his detail in nature and man-made environment, his most prominent feature is the use of light.

Born in 1953, Sexton holds degrees in art and photography from Chapman College and Cypress College. He currently lives in Carmel Valley, but travels extensively for workshops and lectures. Sexton has perfected his technique over the years, and makes no mystery of his findings which he continually shares with others, much in the same way Ansel Adams shared his time in teaching.

He met Adams in a Yosemite Workshop in 1973, and it was then that Sexton decided upon his direction in photography, eventually becoming Adam's primary technical and photographic assistant from 1979 to 1982. He remained his technical consultant until Ansel's death in 1984, and still serves as special projects consultant to the Ansel Adams Publishing Rights Trust. Other involvements include membership on the board of trustees of the Friends of Photography, co-director of the Owens Valley Photography Workshops program and consultant to Eastman Kodak Company.

Sexton has worked in the large format medium in photography and has produced numerous images of quiet elegance. A monograph of John Sexton's work, Quiet Light was published last year by Little, Brown and Company, and is a collection of over 15 years' of photographs. John Sexton has carried on the tradition of the black and white landscape in his own unique verbage and style. His photographs are about light and nature, a quality of light better seen than described.

Monterey Peninsula College announces 1991 season of shows

SEASON TICKETS for the 1991 theater season at Monterey Peninsula College are now available. A special holiday discount of $5 is available on orders placed by Jan.5.

The MPC season pass offers six shows, including musicals, comedies and drama, for $36. That is a $36 savings over the $12 per show price for individual show tickets. The more season tickets purchased, the less they cost. For example, two season passes cost $68, three are $96. A family of five can attend all six shows for $140.

Each production offers matinee and evening performances. Season subscribers need not select performance dates in advance, but can wait until just before each show opens to make reservations.

Season '91 will open March 24 with Biloxi Blues in the MPC Main Stage Theater. The season will continue with West Side Story in May, Heaven Can Wait in July, The Boy Friend in August, M. Butterfly in October and Into the Woods in December.

Peter DeBono will direct Neil Simon's Tony Award winning commedy, Biloxi Blues. The second of Simon's semi-autobiographical plays centers on the trials of World War II basic training and growing up. West Side Story, the musical version of the timeless romance of star-crossed lovers, will be directed by Tom McKenzie. The show features lyrics by Stephen Sondheim and music by Leonard Bernstein.

Sid Cato will direct Heaven Can Wait, a romantic comedy that relates the complications which arise when boxer Joe Pendelton is "taken" too soon and the angelic Mr. Jordan must set things right. The Boy Friend, directed by McKenzie, is a musical spoof recapturing the Roaring Twenties and the Jazz Age.

Ramie Wikdahl will direct the Tony Award winner M. Butterfly, a true-life story of love, illusions and betrayal. If performance rights are unavailable in time for the 1991 season, M. Butterfly will be presented the following year, and What the Butler Saw, a satirical comedy by Joe Orton, will be presented next Fall.

The final show of the season, Into the Woods, interweaves four favorite folk tales in the first act, and reveals what really happened next in Act 2. Sid Cato will direct this musical evening.

Season tickets are available through Center Stage Ticketing, 467 Alvarado St., No. 7, Monterey. Checks should be made payable to Center State Ticketing.

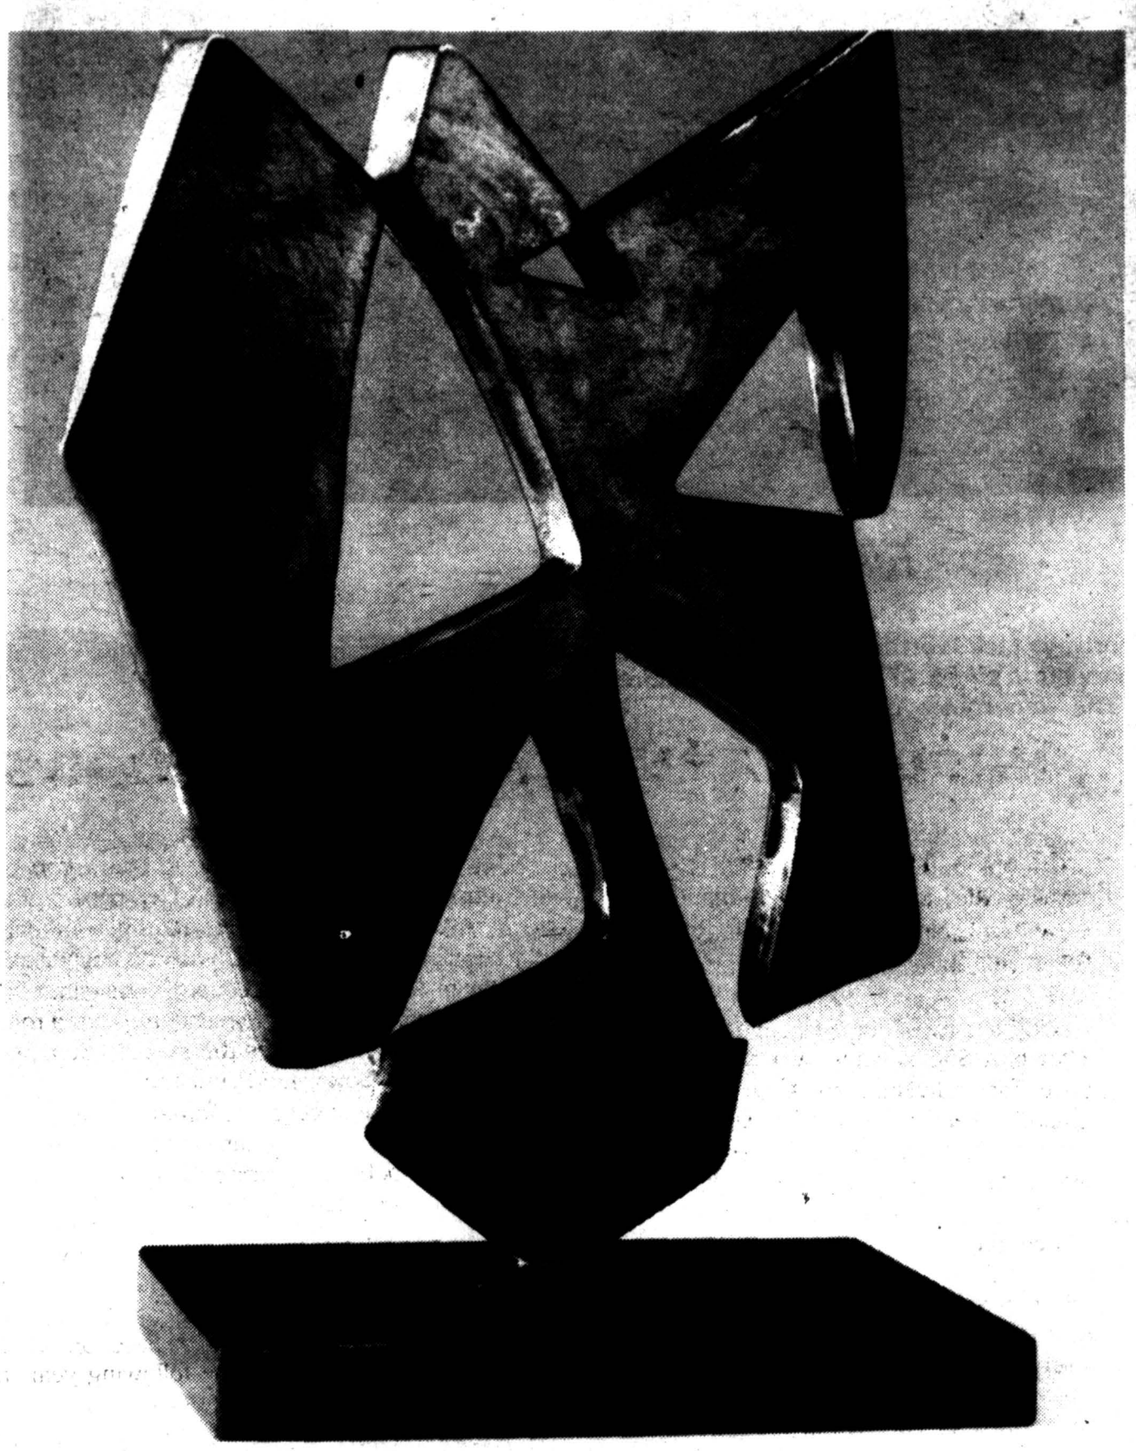
Sculptor, author will pay visit to Grimes Gallery

THE CHRISTOPHER GRIMES Gallery in Carmel-by-the-Sea will be the setting for two weekend receptions. New bronze sculpture by Matt Gil will open with a reception for the artist from 5 to 7 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 1. Jeffrey Becom, artist/author of Mediterranean Color, will sign his book during a reception scheduled 1 to 4 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 2. The gallery is located on the west side of Dolores Street between Ocean and Seventh Avenues, Carmel.

Matt Gil's latest sculptues in bronze will be exhibited at Christopher Grimes through Jan. 26. Gil's work, influenced by Constantin Brancushi and Alexander Calder, pares form to its essence through his own personal vision. These latest works explore varying relationships between negative and positive space – at times trapping or enclosing the negative with positive; letting negative invading positive to form separate shapes; and partially enclosing the negative space, resulting in an almost figurative work.



Part of the work's appeal is in the light, humorous element applied to sophisticated form – the lighthearted attribute to the hard edge – an indigenous facet of Gil's sculpture. Although Gil has worked with steel, wood and aluminum in the past, these works are executed in bronze, with varying patinaed surfaces.

Gil has done much work with kinetic sculpture, and although movement is not incorporated literally in these works, it is incorporated visually. If one spends some time looking at Gil's works, studying the visual movement or movements within a piece, one discovers that a given work can become vast in depth, significance and extent. Gil gives both meaning and beauty to his sculpture in his highly individual incorporation of motion and form.

Gil's work is in the collection of the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art, the San Jose Museum of Art, Oracle Corporation of Belmont, California, Syntex Corporation of Palo Alto, California and Saks Fifth Avenue, New York, among others.

Mediterranean Color features photographs and text by Becom and a foreword by New York Times architecture critic, Paul Goldberger. It chronicles Becom's travels through Mediterranean hill towns and Iberian villages, through Europe, North Africa and the Near East.

In the words of Paul Goldberger from the foreword: "Jeffery Becom's photographs are even more brilliantly poised between abstraction and realism than any others I have ever seen...His work – this book – has two missions: the documentation of a disappearing architectural culture and the creation of beautiful works of art...His photographs are lush, and they are vivid as a color-field painting: also like a painting, they deal in surface more than space. It is the walls that are the reality of the building to Jeffrey Become, not the space within."

Becom, whose background includes studies in both architecture and art, shares his personal view of his travels in the form of Cibachrome photographs and watercolor paintings, which will be on view at the reception. A PBS documentary sponsored by National Geographic trekked through Italy with Become recently. Titled "Travels," it will be televised in January, 1991.

FOUR TRIANGLES was composed by Matt Gil of bronze with patina and black granite base. A reception for Gil is set 5 to 7 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 1 at the Christopher Grimes Gallery, Dolores between Ocean and Seventh, Carmel. For details, call 624-8454.

An opening reception will take place on Saturday, Dec. 1 from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. The public is invited. The Carl Cherry Foundation is located at Fourth and Guadalupe in Carmel; its hours are Monday through Saturday, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Risible farce

NORMAN STOTTMEISTER (left) portrays Jack Worthing and Brian Huntington is Algernon Moncrieff in the Staff Players Repertory Company staging of The Importance of Being Earnest. Oscar Wilde's comedy bows Thursday, Nov. 29 at the Indoor Forest Theater in Carmel.

The Importance of Being Earnest

Oscar Wilde's brilliant and risible farce, The Importance of Being Earnest, will be staged by the Staff Players Repertory Company at the Indoor Forest Theater, Carmel.

Wilde's spoofing of the upper classes and the dramatic conventions of the day has delighted audiences every year since its first production in the 1890s. Like many contemporary comic writers, Wilde was more interested in being clever than being truthful, and his young lovers and their parents and guardians offer a stylish and pleasant enjoyment for the holidays. The play is directed by Philip Clarkson.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays and 2:30 p.m. Sundays through Dec. 22. The theater is at Mountain View and Santa Rita in Carmel-by-the-Sea.

The Staff Players Repertory Company is the adult support arm of the Children's Experimental Theatre. For reservations or information, call 624-1531.

Burn This

Lanford Wilson's electrifying drama, Burn This, continues in the SRO Theatre at Monterey Peninsula College. John Farmanesh directs the production, which plays at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays until Dec. 8.

Burn This probes the lives of a young dancer devastated by the sudden death of her gay roommate; her rich but stuffy boyfriend; her other, also gay, roommate, and disturbing older brother of the dead man.

The cast includes Susan Tiller, Greg Tiller, Jim Sutty and Kevin Nolan Caston.

Roe Reed III designed the lighting for this production. Staci Hartmann is the stage manager.

Tickets are $5 general and $2 for MPC Theatre season ticket holders. Reservations may be made by calling Center Stage Ticketing, 649-5561; or the MPC box office, 646-4213.

'The Barbs' — Fourth Annual Benefit and Artist Recognition Banquet

The Monterey County Theatre Alliance once again presents an evening of actors, by actors and for actors when theater people gather for an evening of fun, food and entertainment.

The new GroveMont Theatre, 425 Washington St., Monterey, will be the setting for the event, which takes place Monday, Dec. 3. It begins at 6 p.m. with a reception and stand-up buffet. An awards program and show follows at 8 p.m.

Emcees for the evening, Kelley Alexander, Kevin Hanstick, Jim Sutty and Eleanor Wylde, from the cast of GroveMont's Tomfoolery, will entertain and introduce local award-winners, as well as scenes from local theater productions.

Seating is limited to 200, and early reservations are advised. Reception, buffet, show and dancing tickets are $25, with show and dancing only tickets available for $10. Tickets may be purchased through Center Stage Ticketing, 649-5561.

The Best Christmas Pageant Ever

The Chancel Players of the Carmel Presbyterian Church, Ocean and Junipero, present the Christmas play, The Best Christmas Pageant Ever, by Barbara Robinson. Free performances are set 2:30 and 7:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 1-2, at the church.

The play, which is set in the present, conveys the message of Christmas. It is double cast, with each cast presenting one matinee and one evening performance. Staging and direction is by Jacqueline Dickman. Assisting is Glen Myers.

Reservations are not required.

Play It Again, Sam

Woody Allen's comedy, Play It Again, Sam, continues its run in the GroveMont Theater Arts Center. Play It Again, Sam follows the trials and tribulations of Allan Felix (Michael Jacobs), as his friends attempt to "fix him up" with a variety of beautiful dates, with disastrous results. Throughout these blind dates, Allan is coached by none other than his movie hero, Humphrey Bogart (Kerry Hartjen). The cast also features Nita Raichart, James Brady, Gina Ferrari, Denise Clifford, Elizabeth Klass, Gretchen Greaves, Maryann Schaupp and Lorraine Crawford.

Jim Webber directs Play It Again, Sam. Curtain is at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays and at 7 p.m. Sundays until Dec. 15.

Tickets on Thursdays and Sundays are $8.50 general and $7 for students, seniors and military. Ticket prices on Fridays and Saturdays are $9.50 general and $8 for students, seniors and military. Advance tickets may be purchased through Center Stage Ticketing, 649-5561. For reservations, call the GroveMont Theater at 649-6852. GroveMont is at 320 Hoffman (at Lighthouse) in New Monterey.

On Golden Pond

Ernest Thompson's drama, On Golden Pond, is the first production of The Forest Theater Guild to be staged in Carmel's Cherry Hall.

Gregory de Silva directs On Golden Pond. The cast features Jim Jensen as Norman Thayer, Nancy M. Neuman as his daughter, Chelsea, and Ramona Davis as Ethel Thayer.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays and 2 p.m. Sundays until Dec. 7. Cherry Hall is at Guadalupe and Fourth in Carmel-by-the-Sea. Reservations are required. For tickets or further information, call 626-1681.

The Drunkard

The wages of drink are outlined in The Drunkard, when a totally respectable Edward Middleton becomes downtrodden after being tempted with drink. Of course, as in all good melodramas, all ends well with Edward back in the loving arms of his family. The title role is played by Kurt Menke.

The program will include works by Couperin, Purcell, Praetorius, Corelli, Mozart, Mahler, Giannini and Gould. Featured violin soloist will be Jose Chain-Barbot, director of the Escuela de Musica Victoriano Lopez in San Pedro Sula, Honduras. A renowned performer throughout Central and South America, Chain-Barbot will play Gypsy Airs by Sarasate accompanied by the Honors Orchestra. He will also present a string master class for members of both orchestras on Friday, Nov. 30.

Chain-Barbot is a violinist with an extensive professional background. He was born in Montevideo, Uruguay. He began his musical studies with his father, also an outstanding violinist, and then went on to study at the Municipal Music School.

He received more advanced study in Argentina (with fellowship from the Mozarteum Argentino) where he studied with Ljerko Spiller. Subsequently, he studied at the National University of Costa Rica and the Academia Chighiana in Siena, Italy. He has participated in many courses, seminars and festivals in Central and South America and is considered one of the best violin instructors in Latin America.

Weihnachtsmarkt welcomes performer

Singer/composer Linda Arnold will perform during The Barnyard's annual Weihnachtsmarkt celebration for St. Nicholas Day on Dec. 2, 1990 at 1:30 and 3:30 p.m. in Thunderbird for Kids.

Arnold is a Disney Channel featured artist and stars in her own musical special featuring many of her original songs from her first LP "Make Believe." "My secret fantasy is to be Mary Poppins," says Linda, "I have that part of me that loves imagination and fanciful things."

She began writing and performing her children in Santa Cruz, where she makes her home. Her following grew rapidly with her regular appearances on a local Saturday morning radio program. This led to the nationally syndicated radio show, "Pickleberry Pie." She is the winner of the 1987 Parent's Choice Award and most recently Arnold will again reach the cable television audience through appearances on the Disney channel and the premiere program on "Kaleidoscope Concert Series."

"Happiness Cake" is Linda's second LP and "Peppermint Wings" is the newest release on A&M Records. She sings of the simple joys and problems of every child's life, for example, loving pizza and popcorn and learning math. She also writes songs about more serious themes, such as having respect for all living creatures, and the need for peace in the world, put in a way that is real and understandable for a young child.

The Barnyard is located off Highway 1 and Carmel Valley Road. For more information call 624-8886.

A HIGHLIGHT of this year's Weihnachtsmarkt celebration in the Barnyard, Carmel, will be performances by singer/composer Linda Arnold. Admission is free to the celebration, set Sunday, Dec. 2. Arnold will appear at 1:30 and 3:30 p.m. at Thunderbird for Kids.

Two sculptors will attend holiday open house

COAST GALLERY-Pebble Beach, located opposite The Lodge, will host sculptors Robert Signorella and Loet Vanderveen at the Pebble Beach open house. The artists will be available to greet visitors and discuss their work from 5 to 9 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 4.

Known for his life-sized eagle sculptures in brass and bronze, Robert Signorella painstakingly creates each individual piece by hand – refining and attaching the more than 3,000 feathers individually to the armature. With talons and head of cast bronze, the finished sculpture is a one-of-a-kind masterpiece and labor of love.

Signorella also creates half-size eagles limited to small editions. Recently, one of his original eagles was presented to the nation's most advanced nuclear aircraft carrier, the U.S.S. Carl Vinson, as the symbol of its peace mission on the high seas.

Loet Vanderveen's unique ability to capture the essence of each animal in his wildlife collection of limited edition bronzes is recognized worldwide. His subtle patinas of ebony, burgundy, jade, and silver-gray highlighted by an accent of polished bronze enhance the elegance and graceful lines of each sculpture. His silver collection of African wildlife introduced a few years ago was created by popular demand and as a natural progression of his art.

The sculptures of both artists are included in private as well as corporate collections internationally and are featured at Coast Gallery – Pebble Beach. For more information call 624-2002.

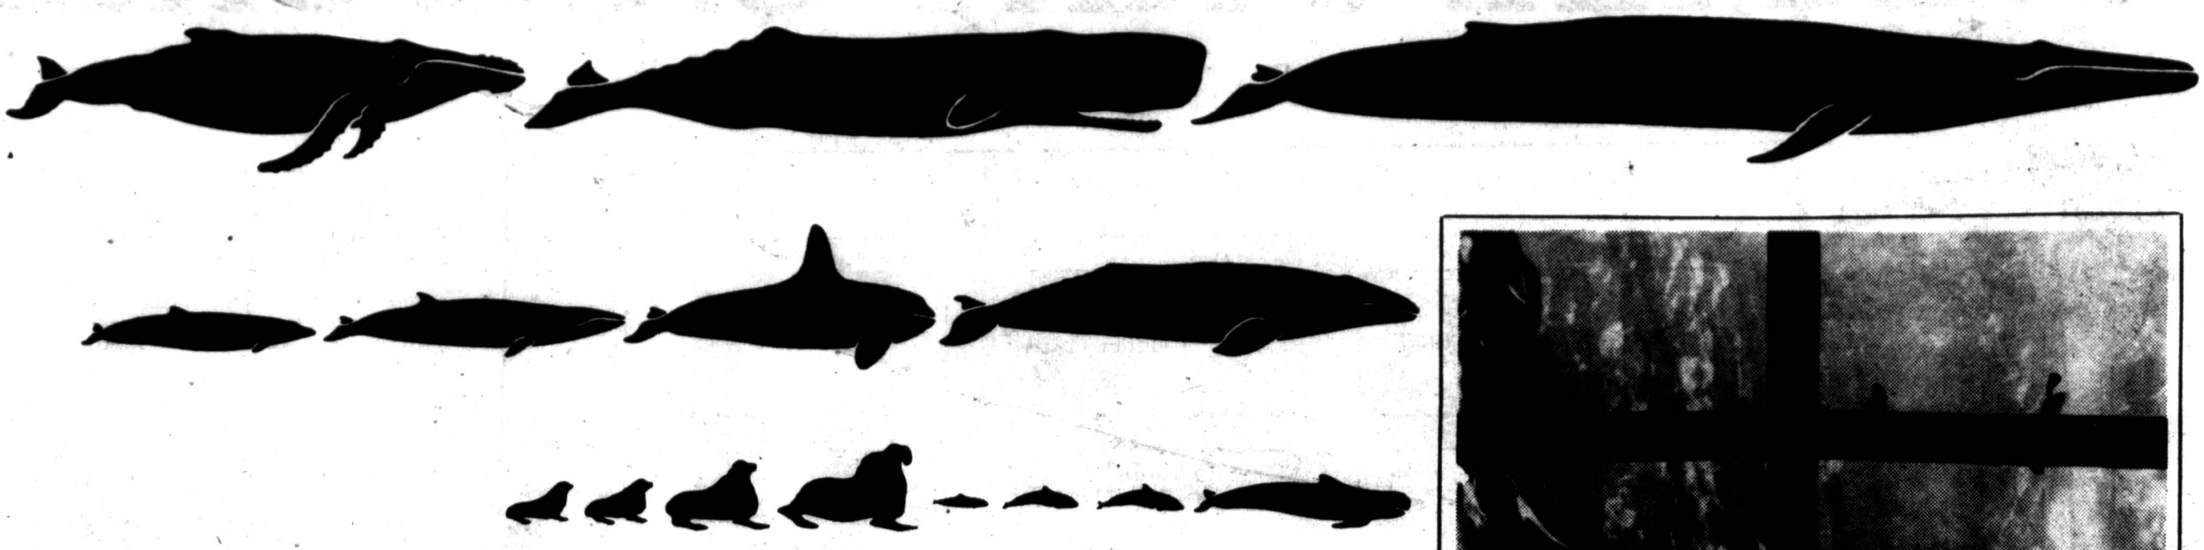
Monterey Bay Aquarium



THIS 335,000 gallon exhibit represents a diver's view of a towering kelp forest community. As giant kelp needs sunlight and wave motion to survive, the 28-foot-high tank is open to the sky. Jets hidden in the rockwork and a surge machine maintain vital water movement.

IT'S STATE-OF-THE-ART, affording an up-close and personal view of some 525 species of fishes, mammals, birds, invertebrates and plants found in Monterey Bay.

The Monterey Bay Aquarium, constructed "in the footprint" of the Hovden Cannery on the west end of Cannery Row – opened to the public in October 1984. A $50 million gift from David and Lucile Packard of Silicon Valley fame made into reality the conversion of a former cannery site into a celebration of colorful and complex Monterey Bay marine life, from sharks to brittlestars to sea otters.

Open 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily except Christmas, the Monterey Bay Aquarium houses 23 major indoor and outdoor galleries and exhibits focusing on the many habitats of Monterey Bay. The aquarium is now a self-supporting, non-profit entity.

Rooflines and even lighting fixtures echo the original Cannery Row style documented by John Steinbeck in his 1945 novel of the same name. Visitors entering the aquarium walk past the original Hovden Cannery boilers, pumphouse and warehouse. These were virtually the only features that could be salvaged from the structure. The rest of the aquarium is new and strictly high-tech. Its 33 major exhibit windows, manufactured by Mitsubishi Rayon of Japan, include panels that are seven and one-quarter inches thick and weight 2.73 tons each. Two 16-inch diameter, 980-foot-long intake lines draw up to 2,050 gallons of sea water per minute from a depth of 55 feet in Monterey Bay. The seawater system permits varying levels of filtration – depending on the needs of the 6,500 specimens that live in the aquarium. These levels range from raw seawater to pressure-sand filtered, de-embolyzed seawater.

And then there are the animals. The Monterey Bay Aquarium is a place where visitors can gaze up into the cathedral-like branches of a kelp forest as a diver explains its intricacies from the other side of a seven-inch-thick window, stare eye-to-eye with a tank's worth of frisky sea otters and brave petting a bat ray that has no stinger.

Virtually all of its inhabitants can be found in Monterey Bay.

Also described by many as "a gawker," the third-of-a-million gallon Kelp Forest exhibit presents a diver's-eye view of a complex undersea community. The exhibit can be viewed from three levels within the aquarium, and houses a towering forest of Macrocystis pyrifera, the California coastline's giant kelp. Jets hidden in the rockwork walls and a surge machine maintain the constant water motion kelp requires. This seaweed, which locally grows up to 10 inches a day, forms a canopy open to the sunlight at the surface.

Also in the "gawker" category is the Monterey Bay Habitats exhibit, a 90-foot-long, hourglass-shaped tank that depicts four bay habitats: the deep reefs, sandy seafloor, shale reefs and the wharf. Large sharks, bat rays, salmon, striped bass and other open-ocean fishes roam the Monterey Bay exhibit. Viewers have a choice to observe the goings-on through bubble-shaped windows or a series of massive acrylic panes.

An interlocking series of habitat galleries and interpretive exhibits explores the facts, myths and mysteries of marine life in the region. Here the curious may study an elegant chambered nautilus hovering in mid-water, sleek and speedy squid, the giant octopus, hermit crabs, sand dollars and dozens of other oceanic denizens.

The Monterey Bay Aquarium operates many programs, including research and education. Approximately 100,000 persons are members, entitling them to unlimited admission, a newsletter, special programs and other benefits. For details, call the Membership Department, (408) 648-4880.

The Monterey Bay Aquarium is located at 886 Cannery Row on its west end, between the borders of Monterey and Pacific Grove. Admission is $8 general, $5.75 for students and senior citizens (65 and over), $3.50 for children ages 3 through 12. Group rates for 20 or more are available by reservation. Call (408) 648-4860, between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. Tickets can also be pre-ordered through Ticketron outlets. There are no Ticketron outlets on the Monterey Peninsula, however.

All exhibits are wheelchair-accessible.

For recorded information about the aquarium, call (408) 648-4888.

For the convenience of aquarium visitors who have their own cars, parking is available at the Cannery Row Parking Garage. Rates are 75 cents per hour, up to a $5 maximum.

Welcome to the Monterey Bay Area...Home of the California Sea Otter

No visit to the Monterey Bay Area is complete without a glimpse of this smallest of marine mammals.

Sea otters spend their lives in nearshore coastal waters where they sleep at the surface, often anchored in a drift of kelp. Groups of otters are called "rafts" because from a distance they look like small logs floating on the sea.

One of the few members of the animal kingdom to use a tool, an otter will place a rock on its chest as an anvil upon which to break open its shellfish prey. Mothers can often be seen sculling along on their backs with a small furry pup aboard.

Unlike seals and whales which have layers of blubber to keep them warm in cold ocean waters, the sea otters rely on their thick fur coats, which they spend many hours grooming every day. An oil spill which could damage their fur, causing the animals to die from exposure, is the greatest threat to their existence.

After the fur trade of the 18th and 19th centuries, sea otters were thought to be extinct in California. But a tiny band survived off the Big Sur Coast. Today otters can be found off San Luis Obispo, Monterey and Santa Cruz counties, yet they still number fewer than 1,400 animals. A "Threatened Species," the California sea otter is protected by state and federal law.

For sea otter gifts and souvenirs, free sea otter literature and information on how you can help protect the animals, please visit

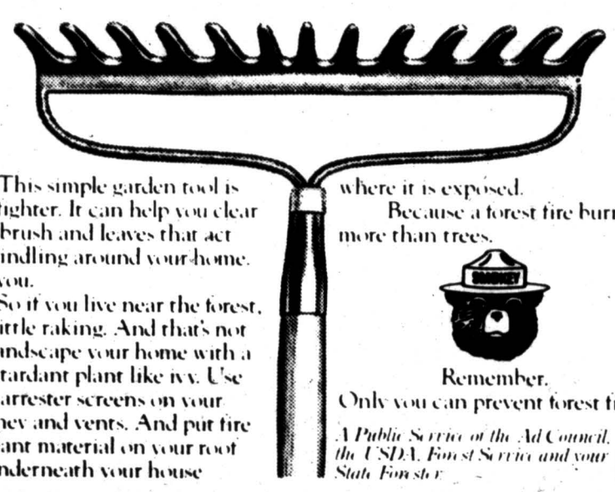
HOW THIS RAKE CAN SAVE YOUR LIFE.



This simple garden tool is a firefighter. It can help you clear away brush and leaves that act like kindling around your home. And you.

So if you live near the forest, do a little raking. And that's not all. Landscape your home with a fire retardant plant like ivy. Use spark arrester screens on your chimney and vents. And put fire retardant material on your roof and underneath your house where it is exposed.

Because a forest fire burns more than trees.

Remember.
Only you can prevent forest fires.
